

CONFIRMATION OF JUDGE HARLAN SEEMS ASSURED

Senators Indicate Nomination to Supreme Court Will Not Stir Fight—Hennings, Kefauver Praise Him.

HE IS GRANDSON OF EX-JUSTICE

Appointee From Circuit Court in New York Area Would Be Third Republican Serving on 9-Man Bench.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Eisenhower's nomination of United States Circuit Judge John Marshall Harlan to the Supreme Court, where Harlan's grandfather, of the same name, once sat, seemed today to be assured of confirmation by the Senate, although there was no indication the President had consulted Senators in advance about the appointment.

The White House announced the nomination yesterday, and the President submitted it formally to the Senate today.

First reaction of Senators willing to comment indicated that Judge Harlan's selection was not likely to stir any controversy.

Nomination Is Surprise.

The nomination came as something of a surprise, although there had been speculation that Mr. Eisenhower might go to the federal judiciary to fill the vacancy left by the death of Justice Robert H. Jackson, Oct. 9.

The President told a questioner at his Oct. 27 press conference that when it came to choosing associate supreme court justices he would think it would be a good practice to bring in people who had real experience on the courts. He said he thought the Supreme Court ought to offer great opportunity to judges who had court experience.

Senators Hennings of Missouri and Kefauver of Tennessee, members of the Senate Judiciary Committee praised the appointment.

"He is an outstanding judge and has a fine record," Kefauver said. "I think he is good appointment and I commend the President on appointing an outstanding jurist. I think he'll be confirmed without opposition."

Salary Increase.

Should Harlan be confirmed, he will get a pay increase along with the prestige of membership on the Supreme Court. His salary now is $17,500; it would jump to $25,000.

Judge Harlan, 55 years old, has been serving on the Circuit Court of Appeals, covering Vermont, Connecticut and New York, since March 4 of this year, by appointment of Mr. Eisenhower.

The judge's grandfather, Justice John Marshall Harlan, served on the Supreme Court from 1877 to 1911. They both bear the name of one of the most famous Chief Justices, John Marshall.

This is Mr. Eisenhower's second Supreme Court appointment. Last year, he named former Gov. Earl Warren of California chief justice of the United States after the death of Fred M. Vinson.

If confirmed, Judge Harlan would join Warren and Justice Harold Burton as the third Republican on the nine-man court.

Judge Harlan told reporters in New York yesterday he feels "very honored" and that if his nomination is confirmed by the Senate, "I will do the best I can to justify the great responsibility that's involved."

Cloudy, Mild

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Considerable cloudiness and continued mild tonight and tomorrow with likelihood of occasional showers beginning tomorrow; lowest temperature tomorrow morning about 45; highest in afternoon in middle 60s.

RUSSIA AMONG NATIONS NAMED TO HELP PLAN ATOMIC PARLEY

U.S. Included in U.N. Group Assigned to Task — Kremlin Has Not Yet Said It Will Take Part.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Seven nations, including the Soviet Union, today were nominated in the United Nations Political Committee to act as an advisory committee to draw plans for an international conference of atomic experts to study means of utilizing nuclear power for peaceful purposes. Russia has not yet indicated if it will join in the enterprise.

Other nations proposed for the committee by Paul Martin of Canada were India, Brazil, the United States, United Kingdom, France and Canada. All but Russia, India and Brazil are co-sponsors of the American-drafted resolution directing U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld to arrange the conference not later than next August.

In making his proposal, Martin expressed gratification for the moderate approach of the debate thus far of Russian spokesmen Andrei Y. Vishinsky and declared he hoped it indicated the Soviet Union would accept the nomination and would enter the united effort to harness the atom for benevolent uses.

Russia was challenged yesterday by United States delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. to prove its peaceful intent by endorsing the atom-for-peace plan, contemplating creation of a world atomic agency to promote international co-operation. It was approved today by Sweden, Cuba, Pakistan, Peru and Egypt.

Lodge denied Vishinsky's contention that the proposal had been watered down from President Eisenhower's original suggestion and that it had been taken from "under the U.N. aegis" suggested by Mr. Eisenhower.

The position of the United States is that the agency would have the autonomous status of a U.N. specialized agency, subject to no veto by the Security Council.

Lodge said that when the agency is set up "presumably the agreement between it and the United Nations will work out any relationship that may be desirable or necessary to the General Assembly and the Security Council."

Lodge then added: "We may perhaps be forgiven for hoping and for expecting that it will not be a relationship in which the Security Council veto paralyzes the agency."

In substance, the resolution sponsored by the United States, Britain, France, Canada, Australia, Belgium and South Africa proposes establishment of an international agency to serve as a "clearing house" for the distribution of atomic materials, facilities and scientific knowledge from the "haves" to the "have nots."

The nucleus of the agency would be the sponsoring powers. Others who could contribute to the work of the agency would be added with the consent of the members. It would report progress to U.N. members and members of specialized agencies. A congress of nuclear experts from free nations in those categories would be convened by the U.N. to discuss research.

In that manner, it would technically be under "the U.N. aegis" as proposed by President Eisenhower, but would not be responsible to the U.N. majority or to Security Council mandate. By the same token, it would not begin as an international pool of world atomic resources seemingly contemplated in the Eisenhower proclamation.

In today's debate, Richard Sandler of Sweden said an American scientist had indicated there was a way of "denaturing" nuclear fuel. Such a process would facilitate the distribution of atomic materials and products, he said, and he wondered whether the technique should be kept secret if it could be employed to make nuclear materials unfit for military purposes.

BRITISH AIR COMMODORE KILLED IN U.S. JET CRASH

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla., Nov. 9 (UP)—Air Commodore Geoffrey D. Stephenson, commander of the Central Fighter Establishment of England's Royal Air Force, was killed in the crash of a United States F-100 Super Sabre, the successor to the Sabrejet, Air Force officials announced today. The crash occurred yesterday.

The 44-year-old pilot, a veteran of several thousand hours in fighters during a 20-year career with the R.A.F., had piloted virtually every type of British jet fighter including Meteors, Venoms, Hunters and Swifts as well as the United States Air Force F-86 Sabrejets.

He headed a six-man team from the Central Fighter Establishment whose headquarters are at West Raynham near Fakenham, Norfolk, England. The Central Fighter Establishment is responsible for development of operational tactics and techniques for the R.A.F. Fighter Command. The group is on a three-week tour of the United States, exchanging data on defense problems, fighter requirements and operational procedures.

Wreckage of Blast in Oklahoma School

Force of gas explosion in high school wing of school at Allen, Okla., yesterday is illustrated by debris scattered in one of the classrooms. Forty-seven persons were injured.

CHURCHILL SORRY NUCLEAR BOMBS WERE DISCOVERED

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today it would have been a good thing if the atom and hydrogen bombs had never been developed. He declined a Laborite suggestion that he use his influence to get other powers to quit testing the bombs.

"I don't think it would be within my power to make a decision of that kind," he told the House of Commons.

Laborite Woodrow Wyatt asked how many atomic and nuclear explosions it would take to produce a death-dealing atmosphere over substantial areas of the world.

Churchill replied it would be "considerably greater than the number which could conceivably be employed in any tests likely to be made by the powers who possess these weapons."

BROOKHAVEN COSMOTRON IS 'DOWN' FOR FIRST TIME

UPTON, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP)—The world's first cosmotron, which develops the equivalent of cosmic rays, is temporarily out of order after two and one-half years of steady service.

Officials at Brookhaven national atomic laboratory here said something burned out Saturday night deep in the interior of the $3,000,000 machine.

How long it will take to make repairs is not known. It might be a week, or months.

Laboratory sources said the remarkable thing was not that the cosmotron was "down" temporarily, but that it had worked so long without difficulty.

WEST GERMANY AUTHORIZED TO IMPORT CIVILIAN PLANES

BONN, Nov. 9 (UP)—The Western Allies today officially authorized the West German government to import and fly civilian planes for the first time since World War II.

Informal sources said the Allied High Commissioners gave the authorization to the West German transport ministry in a letter dated yesterday.

The authorization permits the importation and use at once of four United States-built Convair 340 planes for the revived Deutsche Lufthansa's first European commercial services. According to present plans the Lufthansa European services are to be resumed by next April.

47 HURT IN SCHOOL BLAST IN OKLAHOMA

Explosion Is Set Off by Superintendent Trying to Find Leak.

ALLEN, Okla., Nov. 9 (AP)—Superintendent J. H. McKeel, credited with heroism by his students, accepted responsibility for striking the match which accidentally touched off a gas explosion at Allen High School yesterday. He, the principal and 45 pupils were injured.

Two of the injured were in serious condition.

This morning, the principal, Freeman Pickle, was taken off the danger list.

Joy Rose, 15 years old, and Shirley Innan, 14, are both in serious condition at an Ada hospital. There were 23 other students still in hospitals.

The one-story brick school building was virtually demolished by the blast.

Students were flung against the ceiling and blown through windows by the blast which took place shortly after they settled in their seats for afternoon classes.

Fire Chief Harvey Butler, who estimated damage at $100,000, said gas apparently had been accumulating under the floor several days.

The 150 students in the structure at the time had high praise for McKeel. They said he helped hold up a collapsing ceiling so other victims could be rescued first.

McKeel explained he struck a match in search of the leak after students complained of a "gassy smell."

Pickle was teaching an English class in the room which bore the brunt of the explosion. Nearby elementary and junior high sections of the school suffered little damage.

The school board meets today to determine whether high school classes will be resumed.

QUEEN MOTHER HOSTESS AT DINNER FOR EISENHOWERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (UP)—Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth was hostess last night at a state dinner and reception at the British Embassy for President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Thirty-one guests were invited and afterward 60 more came in for the reception.

Guests at dinner included Vice President and Mrs. Nixon, Chief Justice and Mrs. Warren, United States Senate leaders and Cabinet members and their wives and foreign diplomats.

Yesterday the Queen Mother visited nearby Annapolis, Md., and was welcomed by school children. She was greeted by Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, then toured the state house, historic St. Anne's Episcopal church and the United States Naval Academy.

PLEADS GUILTY OF ATTEMPTING TO KILL NASSER

CAIRO, Nov. 9 (UP)—Mahmoud Abdel Latif, 32 years old, pleaded guilty today to charges of attempting to assassinate Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser. A special tribunal immediately adjourned for two days so he could consult an attorney.

Abdel Latif was arrested Oct. 26 at Alexandria, where eight shots were fired at the Premier, who was addressing a rally celebrating the Suez Canal zone agreement with Britain.

Police said Abdel Latif admitted being a member of the outlawed Moslem Brotherhood. A number of other members of the Brotherhood were seized in Cairo and Alexandria after the attempt on Nasser. Abdel Latif said he planned originally to kill Nasser at a Cairo rally but could not get close enough.

He observed that the Viet Minh already had raised more regular troops than Pakistan or Indonesia though it controls the relatively small population of 14,000,000 people as compared with 70,000,000 for each of the other two countries.

Eden regarded the Southeast Asia treaty all the more important because of this situation. He expressed hope that India, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon would reconsider their refusal to sign the treaty.

Kennedy, Younger, speaking for the Laborites, gave three reasons why his party would not vote against the Manila treaty:

1. Though some important Asian countries rejected it, others (Pakistan, Thailand and the Philippines) joined it.

2. Britain must be a party to an agreement in an area where it is so deeply involved.

3. The Labor party could not give the impression it might repudiate the Manila treaty after recovering control of the British Government.

However, Younger, who was Minister of State in the last Labor Government, criticized the treaty as falling short of an adequate policy for Southeast Asia.

Pickle was teaching an English class in the room which bore the brunt of the explosion. Nearby elementary and junior high sections of the school suffered little damage.

BRITISH APPROVE MANILA TREATY, GENEVA ACCORD

Eden Expresses Concern Over Communist Threat to Laos and Cambodia.

By JOSEPH NEWMAN
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Parliament last night gave its approval to the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty signed in Manila in September and the Indochina settlement negotiated at the recent Geneva conference.

A motion expressing support of the Government's policy on these two matters was approved by a voice vote in the House of Commons.

Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden, in a speech opening debate on the motion, expressed concern over the Communist threat to Laos and Cambodia despite the settlement he was instrumental in promoting at Geneva.

His concern arose from a sharp increase in the size of the Communist-led Viet Minh forces since the Geneva agreement was signed.

Eden said he must make it clear that the "independence and integrity of Laos and Cambodia were matters of the first importance."

Since the Geneva settlement, he said, there had been "a considerable reorganization and rapid expansion of the Viet Minh regular army." By the end of the year, he continued, "this will probably mean that the Viet Minh will have twice as many regular field formations as at the time of the Geneva settlement."

He observed that the Viet Minh already had raised more regular troops than Pakistan or Indonesia though it controls the relatively small population of 14,000,000 people as compared with 70,000,000 for each of the other two countries.

Eden regarded the Southeast Asia treaty all the more important because of this situation. He expressed hope that India, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon would reconsider their refusal to sign the treaty.

Dulles Balks at Releasing Record of John Paton Davies

Says Such Action Would Reveal Secrets—Decision Not Yet Final, However, He Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today it would be contrary to the national interest to make public the full record on the case of career diplomat John Paton Davies, whom he dismissed last week.

It would mean revealing some secrets, Dulles told a news conference, adding that publishing part of the record would be unfair from several viewpoints.

Dulles said, however, he had not made a final decision on the call by Davies for release of the record.

"Preventive War," Dulles also said it was wholly out of the question that a preventive war with the Soviet Union ever could be accepted as United States policy. He said President Eisenhower had made that unmistakably clear.

Davies had suggested, in saying last week he would not contest his ouster, that he would welcome release to the public of the whole record of his case—including by 1950 recommendations that we see a preventive showdown with the Soviet Union.

Davies fired Davies, a career diplomat for 23 years, last Friday in upholding a special security hearing board's conclusion that Davies lacked "judgment, discretion and reliability." There was no question of his loyalty involved.

Davies had been cleared eight times during the Truman Administration on loyalty-security charges.

His dismissal has stirred some criticism in Congress. Senator Chavez (Dem.), of New Mexico told the Senate today that "in my opinion a disservice was done to the foreign service."

He said the Congressional Record some newspaper editorials critical of Dulles's action.

Dulles was questioned closely by reporters on the hearing board's finding that Davies went beyond "privileged boundaries" in making known his views.

Dulles said he would not add to his written opinion of last week.

Asked if the phrase might mean foreign service officers should avoid relations with the press, Dulles said there was no rule of thumb, that it was up to the good judgment of foreign service officers.

PEIPING ACCUSES U. S. PLANES OF INVADING COAST

Charges Six Waves of Aircraft Flew Over Red China Territory, Were Driven Off.

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Red China charged today that six waves of United States Air Force planes flew over its south coast on Sunday and yesterday.

The Peiping radio said this represented "new encroachments on China's territorial air."

The radio said the United States planes flew 50 sorties over the coastal areas of Chekiang province, about 400 miles north of Formosa. The broadcast said the "intruders" fled towards the sea after they were intercepted by Red China fighters and came under anti-aircraft fire.

"These serious encroachments on Chinese territorial air," the radio said, "greatly incensed the officers and men of the armed forces guarding the Chekiang front. They are closely watching the development of the situation and are ready to deal heavy blows at the American air intruders."

The broadcast said most of the sorties were carried out over coastal islands east of Ninghsien (Ningpo) in Chekiang. These islands are near the Chu Shan archipelago where Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces still maintain a foothold.

"DEAF-MUTE" SHOOT, KILLS FELLOW WORKER, SPEAKS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9 (UP)—For 13 years engraver John Schultz, 47 years old, was a "deaf-mute" by choice—hunched silently over his painstaking work and speaking to his fellow workers only in the finger language of the afflicted.

It took a killing to make him talk, and his first words, as he held a smoking pistol in his hand, were, "Where are the cops?"

2 ANTAGONISTIC CAMPS DIVIDING PSYCHIATRISTS, DOCTOR CHARGES

Director of Baltimore Hospital Says One Stresses Physical, the Other Mental Treatment.

Psychiatry's "over-enthusiastic interpreters" are painting a highly unrealistic picture of advances the profession has made in treating the mentally ill, the Southern Medical Association was told today.

Dr. H. M. Murdock of Baltimore, Md., medical director of The Sheppard and Enoch Pratt Hospital, warned that exaggerated claims might cause popular apathy to set in and sabotage the real progress that is being made.

He is chairman of the association's section on neurology and psychiatry, which along with other medical divisions has begun sessions at the 40th annual meeting of the group, ending Thursday.

Dr. Murdock charged that in the last 25 years psychiatrists have tended to split into two ideological camps, those who stress psychoanalysis and those who put their faith in the physical therapies, such as insulin and electro-shock treatments.

"Each group is antagonistic toward the other," he said, urging that the psychiatric profession strive to integrate physical and mental treatments.

Such an integration, Dr. Murdock said, would at least be the beginning of a rational therapy—something that does not now exist.

Go Easy, He Urges. The Baltimore psychiatrist said the public had been given the impression in newspapers and magazines that science knows all about mental illness and that, given enough personnel, money and equipment, asylums can be cleared of patients and many of the outside world's troubles resolved.

"They don't know what they are talking about," Dr. Murdock commented. He noted that some states, aroused to do something about mental hygiene, had been advised to set up highly specialized institutions for control of mental ailments.

He said present clinics and hospitals were doing a good job, declaring: "Let us not sabotage their efforts by talking about different kinds of institutions until we at least know what such an institution might be like."

Another Baltimore psychiatrist, Dr. Frank J. Ayd, reported that of 100 private patients who were given thiorazine, 63 reported relief from anxiety symptoms. The drug's action differs from that of barbiturates in that it produces a soothing effect without clouding of consciousness.

Dr. Ayd said thiorazine, used in psychiatry by the French, had proven of value in making tense, agitated patients more responsive to psychotherapy.

Aged Patients Helped. Dr. James K. Ward and Dr. James A. Beeton of Hill Crest Sanitarium, Birmingham, Ala., told of success in employing electro-convulsive therapy on patients in their 60s, 70s and even 80s. Even those with physical ailments characteristic of old age showed an excellent rate of recovery, it was reported.

Psychiatric appraisal of patients with torticollis, or wry neck, was discussed by Dr. Harold Rosen of Baltimore. Most of his subjects were mental cases, and he put them under hypnosis to determine what underlying mental or emotional difficulty caused the neck condition.

Dr. Rosen, who was careful to point out that wry neck might be physical in origin, warned that if mental trouble were responsible there would be danger that the physician, in relieving the wry neck, might bring out even worse symptoms.

Addressing the section on general practice this morning, Dr. R. B. O'Connor, medical director, Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., said industry was taking in increasingly to preventive medicine.

$30,000 LOSS IN FIRE AT BURKART PLANT

Fourth Major Blaze at Factory Since 1938—Two Floors, Roof Burn.

Firemen fought a five alarm fire last night at the F. Burkart Manufacturing Co., 4900 North Second street, the fourth major fire there since 1938.

Flames discovered at 9 p.m. swept through the two-story cotton cleaning building on the Gano avenue side of the block square plant. Starting from an undetermined cause in the basement, the blaze burned through two floors and the roof, which collapsed with showers of sparks. No one was injured.

Fire fighters, manning 16 pumps, four hook-and-ladder outfits and miscellaneous equipment, directed hose streams into the burning building from aerial ladders and ground stations. Heavy, acrid smoke from bales of cotton batting and fiber, used in the manufacture of mattresses and pads, poured from the windows and through the burned out roof.

Chief Walter H. Kammann, who described the blaze as "the toughest, smoldering type," estimated damage at $30,000. Spectators watched the fire from points of vantage. Two pumps and one hook-and-ladder company remained at the scene today as firemen continued to pour water on smoldering bales of cotton.

Firemen have responded to more than 80 alarms at the Burkart plant in the last 10 years.

The last fire at the plant, last April 8, was started by a short circuit in electrical equipment in the cotton-picking department, firemen said. The Burkart Co. now is a division of Texton, Inc.

URGES BREAKING OF THUMB-SUCKING TO SAVE TEETH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 9 — Big dental bills may be saved through quickly breaking children of thumb-sucking and tongue-thrusting with modern devices, Dr. Earl E. Sheppard, Washington University orthodontist, said here today.

Preventive measures that will obviate long-term, expensive remedial treatment include space-maintainers and palatal crib appliances, he told delegates to the American Dental Association convention.

Seriousness of the problem is shown by one survey that disclosed half of the children among 476 examined had some form of faulty closing of the teeth in early stages, he said.

POLICE ALERTED OVER SHOOTING UP OF WINDOWS

East-St. Louis police were ordered today by Police Commissioner Russell Beebe to be on the alert, especially at night, for boys or young men riding in automobiles and armed with air rifles.

The order was issued after reports that three large show windows of the Haus Chevrolet Co., 1325 State street, East St. Louis, were shot up last night.

Damage was estimated by the owner, Frank J. Haus, at $925. On two previous occasions recently merchants on State street have reported air rifle holes in windows of their stores.

EX-CONVICT WHO SAID HE KILLED BOY, 3, IS RELEASED

Robert E. McBeth, a former convict who admitted to police here he had killed a 3-year-old boy in Pennsylvania in 1950, was released yesterday after Greenville (Pa.) authorities questioned him and decided there was insufficient information for prosecution.

McBeth, who was arrested at his home, 2015 South Jefferson avenue, last Tuesday, had said he smothered the child, an epileptic, with a handkerchief. He later changed his story and said the child, Michael DeWolf, who was suffering from pneumonia, died when he tried to give him medicine.

District Attorney John McWilliams of Mercer county, Pa., who was accompanied by officers, said there was no evidence other than McBeth's story. The child's death was listed as resulting from natural causes.

NEW CHEST GIFTS BOOST TOTAL TO 78.4 PCT. OF GOAL

$78,014 in Contributions From County, City Groups Puts Fund at $4,781,770.

New contributions and pledges totaling $78,014 were reported by the City and County divisions of the Community Chest today, bringing the campaign total to $4,781,770, or 78.4 per cent of the $6,100,000 goal.

The City division listed $27,779 in new gifts and pledges to bring its total to $124,822, or 73.3 per cent of its goal. The "queens for ad ay" at the noon report meeting were Mrs. T. J. Shamon, 6333 Arsenal street, for the City Division, and Mrs. C. Paul Tyley, 1245 Edgewater drive, Bellefontaine, for the County Division. They had raised the highest percentages of their respective quotas.

Other gifts and pledges of $148,819 were reported today by six divisions of the chest. Campaign chairman Chapin S. Newhard, announced.

Large Firms, division, reporting new gifts of $91,994, brought its total to $2,757,188, or 82.6 per cent of its quota. Other divisions reporting were Advance Gifts, $10,345 for total to date of $1,030,800, or 82.6 per cent; Trades, $17,641 for total of $294,827, or 57.9 per cent; Industry and Manufacturing, $18,794, a total of $178,945 or 57.9 per cent; Mercantile and Office, $80,966, a total of $95,186 or 63.3 per cent, and Professional, $19,499, a total of $93,894 or 62.6 per cent.

Three large firms and their employees have contributed a total of $92,056, it was reported earlier.

The total included $41,635 from the St. Louis Public Service Co., $39,009 from the Public Staff Brewing Corp., and $11,412 from the St. Louis Dairy Co., Kenton R. Cravens, Large Firms Division chairman, said.

Per capita gift from employees of the St. Louis Dairy was $12.46, from Falstaff $10.56 and $7.74 from Public Service Co. employees, Cravens noted.

The contributions will be included in the Large Firms report at a luncheon meeting of all divisions tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson.

Also to be included in the report is a $81,836 donation from the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. and its employees, and $22,249 from Sears, Roebuck & Co., and its employees.

The meeting featured a skit entitled "It Takes All Kinds," in which the Velled Prophet Queen, Miss Barbara Anne Whittemore, took part along with three members of her court. They were Miss Caroline Meyer, Miss Flora Sheldon Bush and Miss Lillian Tuttle Sheldon.

SUPREME COURT BARS CITING OF O'CONNELL BY NANGLE

Orders Circuit Judge to Take No Further Action in Dispute With Dowd Over Two Suspects.

Circuit Judge James F. Nangle was ordered today by the Missouri Supreme Court to take no further action in a habeas corpus action involving two burglary suspects, following application by the circuit attorney's office for a writ of prohibition against Judge Nangle.

The court's stop order, signed by Acting Chief Justice C. A. Leedy Jr., was expected to prevent Judge Nangle from proceeding with an order, signed today, directing Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failing to produce the prisoners in Nangle's court.

In the meantime, the Missouri Supreme Court will determine whether to assume jurisdiction of the St. Louis circuit attorney's application and what disposition should be made of it.

The latest in a series of controversies between Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd and Judge Nangle occurred late yesterday when an attorney sought to obtain the release from police custody of Ben F. Bethel, ex-convict, and his brother-in-law, Thomas O. McMahon.

Attorney Seeks Writ. The attorney, Godfrey Padberg, first went to Judge Louis Comerford of the Court of Criminals, seeking a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Comerford gave the circuit attorney's office 24 hours to make a reply.

Detective Sgt. Francis Burke objected to the attempt to get the prisoners released, pointing out that McMahon had made a signed admission and implicated Bethel in a 400 burglary early Saturday at Columbia Motors Service, 2338 Randolph street. Bethel also later admitted his participation.

Padberg then appeared before Judge Nangle with another petition for a writ of habeas corpus. After consulting with Presiding Judge William K. Koerner, who would ordinarily receive such applications, and talking to Comerford in advance of the proceedings, he had informed the judge he did not intend to participate in today's hearings.

Police recovered seven checks taken in the Columbia Motors Service burglary from a cabin at Lutesville, Mo., where Bethel and McMahon said they took the loot. A watch was placed on mail addressed to Bethel's home in the 2600 block of Arsenal street after he said he put the stolen $400 in several envelopes and mailed it to himself.

McMahon, who lives in the 3200 block of Utah street, was employed as a mechanic at the Columbia Motors Service. The acetylene torch he used in his work there was employed by the burglars in opening a safe.

Eisenhower Extends Welcome To 50,000 Soon to Be Citizens

President Sees 22 of Them at White House—Naturalization Ceremonies Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Eisenhower extended "my very sincere welcome" today to some 50,000 foreigners who will become naturalized Americans in mass swearing-in ceremonies throughout the country on Veterans' day, this Thursday.

The President personally expressed his congratulations to 22 citizenship applicants, some with backgrounds of horror in Nazi and Russian slave labor camps.

The 22 from 18 countries included a Catholic priest who escaped execution by the Nazis, a rabbi who fled from invading Russian and German armies, and a Russian seized by the Nazis in Poland in 1944 and placed in a concentration camp.

Cross-section of Group. Those who visited the White House and shook hands with the President were described as a representative cross-section of the 50,000 who will be naturalized Thursday.

In New York's Polo grounds, for example, 8,000 will become citizens. At Los Angeles 7,000 will be naturalized, in Chicago 3,000 and in San Francisco 2,500.

Mr. Eisenhower greeted those who called at the White House today in the rose garden just outside his office. Also present were Chief Justice Earl Warren; Attorney General Brownell; Herbert Hoover Jr., Under Secretary of state, and Gen. Joseph Swing, commissioner of immigration and naturalization.

After the 22 applicants had introduced themselves, the President told them:

"It is really a privilege to welcome you, not only to all of the rights and freedoms that go with American citizenship, but to remind you—as you already know—that it has very serious obligations.

"We expect you to carry on the obligations just as you enjoy the rights and privileges. That is what every good citizen does. You are following in the footsteps of millions that have come before you . . . you will add your part to this great nation that we call America.

"Through you I would like to extend my very warm greetings, my very sincere welcome, to all the 50,000 who—with you—will take the formal oath of allegiance to the United States."

Tales of Horror. Biographical sketches of those who called on the President told tales of misery and horror. In many cases, in the lands of their birth and elsewhere. But the sketches also told of contentment and happiness at last in this country.

One of the stories was of Czeslaw Kozal, Catholic priest, who was born in Poland. The sketch said he "was arrested by German Gestapo while saying mass on Jan. 27, 1940. Prisoner at Dachau, Germany, until liberated by a U.S. Army patrol from Gen. Patton's Army on May 25, 1945, three and one-half hours before he was to be executed."

The priest now resides at Pine Hill Pass, Christian, Miss., where he is on the faculty at the Oblate Fathers Seminary.

Another sketch told about Rabbi Szyja Grodzicki, also a native of Poland. He "fled to Lithuania in 1939 to escape invading Russian and German armies." He attended rabbinical schools in Lithuania until February 1941, when he left to "escape arrest and deportation to Siberia." He now resides in New York.

Paul Shirochensky, a native of Russia's Ukraine, was "seized in Poland by the Nazis in 1944 and transported with his wife to a labor camp in Germany."

He entered the United States in 1949 and is working as a civil engineer. He filed a petition for naturalization last September at Rochester, N.Y.

U.S. SUBMARINE TAKES CHIANG KAI-SHEK FOR RIDE

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 9 (AP)—The United States Seventh fleet, which guards this Nationalist China base, took President Chiang Kai-shek for a ride today—in a snorkel submarine.

Chiang was aboard the Charr nearly four hours, long enough to inspect the underwater craft and to lunch with V. Adm. Alfred M. Pride, Seventh fleet commander, and other officers.

The submarine submerged to about 60 feet, then cruised smoothly.

It was Chiang's first trip in a submarine. He particularly enjoyed searching the surface of the sea through the periscope.

ILLINOIS CONGRESSMAN'S OFFICE ROBBED OF $1236

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (UP) Representative C. W. Bishop (Rep.), Illinois, said today thieves stole more than $1,236, including rare coins and bills, from his safe in the new House office building.

Bishop said the theft occurred in the recent congressional recess and that he did not discover the money was missing until he returned to Washington, Monday.

Science and Health may be read, borrowed, or purchased at any Christian Science Reading Room, or send $3 and a copy will be mailed postpaid.

FIRM CLEARED OF CHARGE IT MISAPPROPRIATED U.S. CORN

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 9 (UP)—A United States District court jury early today cleared Cargill Co., Inc., and one of its local grain elevator superintendents of charges of misappropriating Government-owned corn at the port of Albany three years ago.

The jury deliberated about eight hours before returning a verdict of not guilty for the firm and Superintendent George Carlson. Cargill and Carlson had been charged with "removing, disposing and converting" corn owned by the Commodity Credit Corp.

Last week Judge James T. Foley dismissed an indictment against a third defendant, Marcus Marshall, Cargill's operating superintendent at the port.

GROUP TO STUDY STATE PRISON RIOT NOT YET FORMED

Seven Weeks Have Passed — Wisconsin Warden Unable to Serve, Donnelly Says.

By BOYD F. CARROLL, Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 9 —
Organization of Gov. Phil M.
Donnelly's proposed commission to study causes of recent state penitentiary riots here, and to recommend remedies, has not been completed although seven weeks have elapsed since the first disastrous outbreak last Sept. 22.

Donnelly said yesterday he hopes to obtain the necessary acceptances this week, "and get the survey under way."

The Governor added that he had received word from Gov.
Walter J. Kohler Jr. of Wisconsin that Warden Joseph C. Burke of the Wisconsin penitentiary would not be available for service on the commission, because it was not considered advisable to grant him a leave of absence at this time.

Donnelly has asked for the services of Burke, on a leave of absence basis, as a member of the survey commission. He said he would seek the services of another warden, outside Missouri, to replace Burke, but would not say who.

Two Acceptances.
So far Donnelly has acceptances from Edward R. Cass of New York, secretary of the American Prison Association, and Warden Joseph E. Ragen of the Joliet and Stateville prisons in Illinois. Illinois officials have granted leave for Ragen to serve, it was said.

The Governor would not say whether other acceptances had been received, or whether Missouri members would be included, as he originally announced. The Governor has said he desired a small commission, perhaps five members and a consultant.

The succession of penitentiary riots, starting last Sept. 22 and resumed for several days beginning last Oct. 22, resulted in the death of four convicts, wounding or injury of 67 other convicts and four guards, and property damage of more than $1-000,000, including destruction of virtually all of the prison industrial shops.

Legislature Meets Jan. 5.
The Missouri Legislature, which likely will have to enact enabling legislation for any rehabilitation proposals by Donnelly as a result of the survey, will convene on Jan. 5, slightly more than eight weeks from now.

Donnelly said he has not determined what method of financing may be utilized for rebuilding, or for an over-all rehabilitation program. Such funds would have to be derived from appropriations by the Legislature against state general revenue, or could be obtained through submission of a bond issue proposal to voters of the state, either through passage of a legislative resolution or circulation of initiative petitions.

OKINAWA CONVICTS STEAL ALCOHOL, CREATE UPROAR

NAHA, Okinawa, Nov. 9 (AP)— Convicts who got drunk on stolen alcohol today brought new turmoil to Naha prison, scene of a wild riot and breakout.

Thirty-one convicts are still at large following Sunday's revolt of the prison's 852 male adult prisoners. Four escapees gave themselves up and 16 others were nabbed by police.
Officers expect to round up the others soon.

The latest flareup came after some of the inmates drank five gallons of alcohol stolen from the prison's medical stores.
They sang, danced, roamed their prison yard at will and refused to let carpenters repair the damage from Sunday's riot.

GROCERY IS ROBBED OF $2000 BY MAN

Breckenridge Hills Store
Cashier Says Robber Wore
Yellow Mask.

The cashier of an I.G.A. supermarket at 9136 St. Charles road, Breckenridge Hills, was held up shortly before noon today by a masked man, who fled with approximately $2000.

Mrs. Gerald Kalb, the cashier, told police she was in her glass-enclosed cage near the front door when the man, wearing a yellow mask, approached and demanded money. He displayed what appeared to be a small-caliber revolver.

Mrs. Kalb emptied several cash drawers, and handed the money to the robber. He walked out the door, got in a new automobile parked on the store's parking lot, and drove away.
The robbery was unobserved by 25 employees and 15 customers in the store.

The license number of the robber's automobile was reported to police by a witness, and the machine was found 10 minutes later, parked five blocks away in the 3300 block of Orland road, St. John. There was a jumper on the ignition, indicating the machine had been stolen, police said.
Mrs. Kalb, who is 22 years old and lives at 2700 Osgood avenue, Overland, said the robber ordered her to get down on the floor after she gave him the money.

tion, held on the thirty-seventh anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, might have created a diplomatic incident.

It was a decision understandable under the circumstances whether one agrees or disagrees with it on reflection, Dulles added.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., American representative to the United Nations, declined to attend a similar Soviet party in New York and Livingston Merchant, Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, canceled plans to attend a Washington celebration.

Asked to comment on Yoshida's proposal for large-scale economic aid to Southeast Asia, in the form of a sort of Asian Marshall plan, Dulles said he was well aware of social and economic conditions in Asia but that conditions were different from those the Marshall plan was designed to correct in Europe.

Industrial Operations.

In Europe, he pointed out, it was necessary to recreate an industrial plant that had been shattered by war; in Southeast Asia one must start from scratch. Dulles said he was not convinced as of today that expenditures on the order of the Marshall plan spending would produce practical results.

From one viewpoint, Dulles continued, preference in economic aid should be given the signatories of the Manila pact, but from another, it should be understood that permanent improvement calls for aid to countries such as Indonesia which did not sign the Southeast Asia defense treaty. The State Department is giving serious consideration to the whole subject, Dulles said.

Dulles said he was not satisfied with the Communist implementation of the Geneva agreement for dividing Viet Nam pending general elections in 1956. He said he thought the Communists were violating the spirit of the agreement but that he had few direct reports. The matter will be discussed when French Mendes-France visits the United States soon, Dulles said.

On other subjects, Dulles said that discussions with regard to a mutual assistance pact with Formosa are under active consideration but that insufficient progress has been made to anticipate results; that he could see no purpose in a Big Four meeting of the Western powers and Russia on Germany and Austria until West Germany is fully integrated into the Western defense alliance, and that the United States has no legal commitment to keep troops in Germany for a stated period of time.

Nations or the International Court of Justice. He said he did not exclude the possibility that the United States would get some sort of satisfaction other than moral from the Russians.

The Secretary said he did not think the Soviet Union was trying to provoke a general war with the free world but in working out a hypothesis one must remember the Communist world has vast military power and no inhibitions based on moral considerations. The free world should act so that the Communists will calculate a general war will not serve their best interests, Dulles said.

DIRECTOR OF MIAMI AIRPORT ACCUSED OF STEALING HOUSE

MIAMI, Nov. 9 (UP)—A. B. Curry, director of Miami's big International airport, was arrested yesterday on a charge of grand larceny.

The warrant, issued by the county solicitor's office, charged Curry with grand larceny of "a house valued at more than $50" from the airport. R. R. Russell, president of a house moving firm who was listed as a witness, said the building was a two-story frame garage once used as a tool shed at the airport which Curry had him move to a farm near Homestead which Curry owns.

Curry was formerly city manager of Miami and of Coral Gables.

about corporate trust services...

Corporate Treasurers, Secretaries and Comptrollers of today are mighty busy men. High operating costs, lowered profit margins, and complex tax problems complicate their job. Add the constant burden of stock transfers, plus the bookkeeping detail, and the load becomes even heavier. That's why busy executives often look outside their own organizations for competent, cooperative help.

Many corporations and municipalities, both in St. Louis and elsewhere in the United States, count on Mercantile's Corporate Trust Department. Experience, flexibility, and the fact that it has the necessary mechanical aids, enable this department to function expeditiously and accurately. Take stockholder activity, for example. Mercantile acts as Transfer Agent, maintains readily available ledgers with a separate account for each shareholder, and takes over the mass of minute detail that must be handled throughout the year. Proxy mailing, dividend calculation and paying, and all the other necessary paper work that goes into shareholder relations is handled quickly, economically and accurately.

Because the work involved in paying dividends is primarily on a "peak load" basis, usually occurring quarterly, more and more companies find outside service, like Mercantile's Corporate Trust, an economical and convenient solution.

Where bond issues are involved, Mercantile, as Trustee, has men who work closely with company officers and their legal counsel to clarify the operating provisions of the mortgage or indenture. And this close cooperation, born of years of experience, pays off in smooth trustee relationships.

Mercantile also acts as bond and coupon paying agent, relieving many corporations, municipalities and special improvement districts of the detail involved in periodic payments as well as regular sinking fund and special calls for the payment of bonds.

So, if we can brighten the stock and bond picture in your organization, please get in touch with us. We'll be glad to talk over your situation at any time... for immediate action, or for future planning.

Witness Says Dixon-Yates Aim Is to Ruin TVA

feet will pay twice for the Dixon-Yates plant, yet never own it. Radin continued:

"The payment of the cost of the plant twice comes about in the following manner: First, the Government, through its capacity charge, covers the amortization of the plant in 31 years. Then, because of the excess in the Government's power bill over the cost of power from a comparable TVA plant, the Government will pay, by conservative estimates, an additional $114,235,000 (over a 31-year period)."

Income Tax 'Myth.'

Radin said the contention that the Dixon-Yates groups would pay Federal income taxes "is a myth." The contract as drawn at present, he said, provides that the Government would actually pay the federal income taxes through its power bill.

Under questioning by Senator Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, Radin said power distributors would rather risk a shortage of electricity than accept the Dixon-Yates contract. He said he thought it always would be possible to take care of consumer interests in some manner.

Senator Pastore (Dem.), Rhode Island, expressed concern that the Government is heading toward "a big lawsuit for damages" by the way the fight over the Dixon-Yates contract is developing.

He told reporters later that as he sees it the only effective action Congress can take to stop the contract is by withholding appropriations. By the time this question comes up, next June, the contract might be signed and work started on the new plant, he added.

In that case, Pastore said, cancellation could lead to a damage suit.

By the United Press.

Radin said the contract is a trend toward a "private power monopoly" because it would combine two utility holding companies—Middle South Utilities, Inc., and the Southern Co.—whose assets amount to more than a billion dollars.

Radin said Dixon-Yates would split 50-50 with the Government on any savings realized by cutting construction costs below the $107,250,000 figure. He said that would raise the private combine's profits on its equity capital above 9 per cent. A $10,000,000 cut in building costs would boost the combine's profit to 14.1 per cent, he said.

McAfee Letter

READ AT HEARING

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Representative Chet Holifield (Dem.), California, a leading opponent of the proposed Dixon-Yates power contract, tried to show today that the controversial proposal was aimed at destroying the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Holifield quoted a letter from J. Wesley McAfee, president of Union Electric Co. of Missouri, containing suggestions on how "to relieve the national budget of unavoidable capital expenditures in the TVA area."

The suggestions were alternatives to TVA's request for funds to build a new steam power plant of its own. Both Congress and the Eisenhower Administration had turned down this request, one reason being that it would require an expenditure of $100,000,000 in the next three years and add to the national debt.

McAfee's Three Points.
McAfee's brief letter last Jan. 4, to Walter Williams, assistant general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, consisted mainly of three points, which he listed in order of priority:

"First, that TVA no longer assume full responsibility for supplying all the needs of municipalities. Thus, as present contracts expire, those municipalities which need a great supply than is available for the authority would be obliged to arrange for purchase from others or for the construction of a plant with municipal funds."

"Second, arrangements with neighboring companies of TVA to sell power to the authority. I am confident that arrangements could be made for the construction of a new plant if that is needed."

"Third, the plan you discussed with me."

Holifield, pursuing the contention that TVA would be harmed by introduction of private power into the TVA area, asked:

"Is that not part of a plan to destroy the TVA?"
The witness at that time, also a bitter opponent of the Dixon-Yates proposal, was Alex Radin, general manager of the American Public Power Association. Radin replied: "I think there's no question about that."

"Third Dagger in Closet."

Holifield said he had no way of knowing exactly what the third point meant, but he said it obviously referred to "a third dagger in the closet pointed at the heart of TVA."

McAfee told the Post-Dispatch last Aug. 21 about his part in conversation that led to the Dixon-Yates proposal.

He said he had been asked whether he would be interested in a syndicate that would enlarge the plant at Joppla, Ill., being built by Electric Energy, Inc., to supply power to the AEC plant at Paducah, Ky. McAfee then was president of E.E.I. He said he was not enthusiastic, but offered to inquire about other possible financing. That proved impossible, he said, because AEC was not yet ready to disclose its plans.

Later, in January, McAfee said, he attended a meeting at the Bureau of the Budget, solely to explain why he was not interested in the new project. Edgar H. Dixon, president of Middle South Utilities Inc., was there also, and McAfee mentioned Dixon's earlier offer to build a plant for TVA, McAfee said. He added that he learned later of the Dixon-Yates offer to build a plant at West Memphis, Ark.

"It would be a serious misstatement of fact to say that I brought Dixon and the Government together on the deal," McAfee said.

There have been varying accounts of the early talks that led to the Dixon-Yates proposal. AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss told the Joint Committee of Initial explorations with McAfee and added: "It was through his suggestion and introduction, I believe, that Mr. Dixon and Mr. Yates were brought into the negotiations."

Two New Factors.

Two new factors were injected today into the controversy over the contract, which remains unsigned. The developments were:

1. Atomic Energy Commissioner Joseph Campbell, one of the two AEC supporters of the Dixon-Yates deal, was named by President Eisenhower to a 15-year term as Comptroller General, head of the General Accounting Office.

2. Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, a leading opponent of the proposed contract, was named to the joint atomic energy committee in place of Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.), Colorado. Johnson resigned from the joint committee after his election as Governor of Colorado last Tuesday.

It was not clear immediately what effect Campbell's appointment would have on the AEC's negotiating a contract since February.

"Valuable construction time has been lost, construction and labor costs have advanced, and the financing arrangements with lending institutions will be in jeopardy if money markets should change," Yates said.

Yates, who is chairman of the board of the Southern Company, said that the proposed Dixon-Yates contract has been approved by the Atomic Energy Commission and that the commission chairman stated that the cost to the AEC for power would be a rates lower on a comparable basis than rates under existing contracts with TVA or other private utilities.

"We believe that this proposal is in the public interest. Responsible representatives of the various governmental agencies have stated that it is in the public interest. Certainly it is not in the public interest to continue to delay," he said.

Yates said that on Nov. 8 the sponsors of the proposed contract advised the commission that they were prepared to join in the unconditional execution of the contract at once.

"We came into this situation in response to the President's budget message of last January, which suggested that industry rather than the Federal Treasury supply the funds for building the necessary power facilities for the Atomic Energy Commission," he said.

TVA Director Against Waiving 30-Day Period.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 9 (UP)—Dr. Harry Curtis, a director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, disagreed today with part of the testimony on the Dixon-Yates contract by board Chairman Herbert Vogel before the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee yesterday.

Dr. Curtis said he feels safe in saying that he and Dr. Raymond Paty, the other board member, agree with most of Vogel's testimony, with the exception of favoring an immediate go-ahead on the controversial power proposal.

"I don't think the Dixon-Yates contract should become effective until TVA and AEC agree," he said, "and we have not agreed." He said he does not believe the 30-day waiting period of the contract should be waived by the committee as requested by the Administration.

"The whole fact," he said, "is that we have not reached an agreement. We have made some progress, but we have not reached an agreement. I think we should not be too optimistic about it."

position on the Dixon-Yates contract, negotiated under President Eisenhower's instruction, but with the support of only two members of the AEC, Campbell and Chairman Lewis L. Strauss.

Report Expected Thursday.
The AEC reported it expects to report Thursday morning on its success in getting the contract signed.

Gore's appointment to the committee appeared to indicate a decision by Democratic Senate leadership to make the Dixon-Yates affair a major issue in the new Congress.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, who will return as majority leader, promised during the campaign that the Democrats would undertake a thorough "ventilation" of the subject.

Yates Says Sponsors Are Ready To Go Ahead.

ATLANTA, Nov. 9 (UP)—E. A. Yates, one of the sponsors of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract, said today that the proposal is "fair and reasonable" and that the sponsors are ready to go ahead with the contract.

In a prepared statement, Yates said that the sponsors of the proposal for supplying electric power to the Atomic Energy Commission have been ne-

TAVERN OPERATOR ARRESTED ON IMPERSONATION CHARGE

Maynard B. Bramley, 9304 Alpine drive, Affton, a tavern operator, was charged with impersonating another person and with peace disturbance in two warrants issued yesterday at Clayton on the complaint of a 27-year-old St. Louis county housewife.

The housewife, who had complained to the Sheriff's office that she had received several annoying calls from a man describing himself as a physician, was instructed to try to make an appointment with the caller in her home.

The appointment was kept by Bramley who was detained by the woman's husband until Sheriff's deputies could take him into custody. He was released on bond of $2000 for an appearance Nov. 17 before Magistrate Anthony J. Fassler of LeMay.

ORDNANCE DISTRICT AWARDS $2,870,701 IN CONTRACTS

Contract totaling $2,870,701 were awarded in the St. Louis area last month, the St. Louis Ordnance District announced today.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., East Alton, received a contract for $1,757,702 for ammunition; Jackes-Evans Manufacturing Co., 4427 Geraldine avenue, cartridge links, $1,104,642; Wagner Electric Corp., spare parts for automotive brakes, $4116, and St. Louis University, research and development, $4240.

The contracts were included in awards totaling $10,036,150 by the St. Louis Ordnance District to firms in Missouri, Illinois, Colorado and Texas.

FIFTH AMENDMENT CALLED LEGAL, NOT MORAL, SECURITY

The legal right to invoke the Fifth Amendment as protection against self-incrimination carries no guarantee against moral consequences, Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd declared today.

Addressing a meeting of the women's division of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis, Dowd said the recent increase in use of the Fifth Amendment in congressional investigations has pointed up the difference between being prosecuted for a crime and suffering non-legal consequences.

As an example, he cited the case of a Florida lawyer who was disbarred for invoking the Fifth Amendment but whose contempt citation was dismissed. The lawyer's loss of his job opportunities was a non-legal consequence, but he was legally protected against contempt action, Dowd pointed out. The meeting, one of a series, was held at the home of Mrs. Hugo Wurdack, 5501 Lindell boulevard.

DOLAN APPEAL HEARD, TRIAL CALLED UNFAIR

Lawyer Cites Testimony by FBI Agent in Ransom Case.

Elmer Dolan's appeal from a perjury conviction growing out of the investigation into the missing Greenlease ransom was heard here today by the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

The suspended St. Louis policeman, serving his two-year sentence at a federal reformatory in Texarkana, Tex., was represented by Merle L. Silverstein, an attorney, before a three-judge panel in the Federal building.

Today was the appeal of former Police Lt. Louis Shoulders, who is serving a three-year sentence for lying under oath to a federal grand jury in the ransom inquiry. Shoulders is at the federal medical center at Springfield, Mo.

Shoulders and Dolan arrested Carl Austin Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, kidnap-killers of young Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City. The kidnapers later were executed.

Silverstein argued that Dolan did not obtain a fair and impartial trial in United States District Court in Kansas City last March.

He called attention to testimony by Frank Staab, a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, who told the jury that Dolan informed him he wanted to change his testimony before a federal grand jury looking into disappearance of $303,720 of the $600,000 Greenlease ransom. The trial judge ordered the jury to disregard this statement by the Government witness, but the testimony "was so highly prejudicial no instruction by the court could possibly counteract it," Silverstein told the appellate court.

He also argued that the Government failed in Dolan's trial to establish that two suitcases introduced into evidence had once held the Greenlease ransom. Hall, when arrested by Shoulders and Dolan, had two suitcases, which were found later to contain only half of the $600,000.

Another point raised by the attorney dealt with the necessity of proving that Dolan's testimony before the grand jury was material to the investigation—a requisite to substantiate a perjury charge.

Silverstein said the defense repeatedly called to the trial court's attention that materiality had not been shown, but the judge had overruled motions along this line.

MALENKOV PRAISES EISENHOWER IN CHAT AT KREMLIN

MOSCOW, Nov. 9 (AP)—Representative Victor Wickersham (Dem.), of Oklahoma, said yesterday Soviet Premier Malenkov and Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev expressed "high regard" for President Eisenhower when he met them at a banquet Sunday night in the Kremlin.

The Congressman said he was chatting with foreign trade minister A. I. Mikoyan after the banquet when Malenkov strolled up. The Premier said he admired Mr. Eisenhower and remarked the President was famous in World War II as "an honorable soldier."

Khrushchev then joined the group and continued in the same vein. The three conversed for some time.

Wickersham said no mention was made of a possible Eisenhower-Malenkov meeting.

Malenkov told Wickersham "we want peaceful countries living together peacefully — will you please convey that fact to America?"

The Congressman replied that the United States also wants to live in peace with all countries.

LIFE SENTENCE UPHELD IN ARMED ROBBERY HERE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 9.—The Missouri Supreme Court yesterday upheld a life imprisonment sentence imposed on Wilburn Jerome Gerberding in St. Louis Circuit Court on Feb. 5, 1953, for armed robbery under the habitual criminal law.

Gerberding was convicted in Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield's court of robbing Peter Mascuzzini of $4200 as he returned from a bank to his place of business, 1000 Central Industrial drive, on Nov. 22, 1951. He was sentenced to life after he turned down an offer of a 15-year prison term in return for a plea of guilty. The indictment charged armed robbery.

WATKINS OFFERS RESOLUTION TO CENSURE MCCARTHY

penditures of any investigating committee or subcommittee shall be accompanied by a statement signed by the chairman that the investigation was duly authorized and conducted under the provisions of this rule.

Specifically, the first part of the select committee's resolution on censure refers to Senator McCarthy's failure to answer questions raised in 1951 and 1952 by a subcommittee at one time headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), his references to the subcommittee members as engaged in picking the pockets of the taxpayers and his denunciations of Senator Robert C. Hendrickson, New Jersey Republican and a member of the subcommittee, as a "living miracle" being "without brains or guts."

The second section of the resolution deals with Senator McCarthy's conduct when he was questioning Gen. Zwicker in February 1954 about the Army's promotion and honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, an Army dentist, whom Senator McCarthy had called a "Fifth Amendment Communist."

Senator Watkins introduced the documents just before the Senate adjourned until 10 a.m. tomorrow when the consideration of the censure recommendation of the Watkins committee will begin.

The were only about 10 Senators on the floor when Senator Watkins sent his resolutions to the desk. The galleries, which had been packed at the outset of today's session in expectation of a repetition of yesterday's attack by Senator McCarthy on the Watkins committee report, were only about one-third filled when Senator Watkins made his move.

The Majority Leader William F. Knowland told the Senate that he had informed McCarthy that Watkins was going to present his resolutions this afternoon. McCarthy was absent from the floor, however, and the brief formalities went off without incident.

The Senate spent the day in memorial services for Senators who have died since June. The Senator for whom the Senate held memorial services today were Lester Hunt, Wyoming Democrat; Hugh Butler, Nebraska Republican; and Pat McCarran, Nevada Democrat.

Memorial services for Senator Burnet R. Maybank, South Carolina Democrat, were postponed until next January at the request of members of his family.

PRESIDENT PICKS AEC'S CAMPBELL AS COMPTROLLER

Trice, secretary of the Senate. He was not available for immediate comment.

Warren retired from the position earlier this year.

McCarthy Silent.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee which will consider Campbell's appointment, said he had no plans to schedule hearings. McCarthy declined to comment on the nomination.

Senator Knowland of California, the G.O.P. leader, had said earlier no controversial nominations would be taken up at the special Senate session, which convened yesterday, so Democratic objections could block Campbell's confirmation until the new Senate meets.

If that should happen, Mr. Eisenhower would have to re-submit the Campbell nomination to the new Senate—which will be Democratic controlled.

As comptroller general, Campbell would head the General Accounting Office, which has submitted a memorandum on the controversial Dixon-Vates contract to the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. While the GAO memorandum made no recommendations, it raised a long series of questions about the contract's terms.

U.S. CHARGES PETERSEN WITH COPYING SECRETS

the removal of classified material, the bill asserted that the offense allegedly occurred sometime during 1952 and related to the document on North Korean political security traffic.

The National Security Agency is a branch of the Defense Department that monitors foreign radio transmissions and tries to break the secret codes and cryptographic system of other nations.

Details of the charges against Petersen had not previously been made public by the Government, although Petersen's lawyer had disclosed that he was accused of improperly giving information to The Netherlands through a Dutch army officer stationed here who had long been a personal friend.

The Dutch Government acknowledged receiving information through Petersen but said it thought he was authorized to disclose it. United States officials have emphasized that there was no intention of accusing the Dutch of any improper actions.

By the Associated Press.

The Chinese embassy in Washington said later that one of the "classified" documents allegedly held illegally by Petersen was sold commercially both in this country and to Chinese merchants.

The embassy spokesman said the document, known as the Chinese telegraphic code SP-D, was frequently used by oriental business establishments. It is a reduction of Chinese characters into numbers for radio message use, the embassy said.

Two copies of the code are available at the embassy, the spokesman added. He offered to let a reporter see it.

The accusation regarding Petersen's possession of an analysis of an American cryptograph refers to the Hagelin cryptograph B-211. The government property disposal office at Fort Belvoir said it had a decoding machine of that name for sale from time to time.

TWO POLICE DISPATCHERS AID IN SAVING MAN'S LIFE

Fast work and close co-ordination in sending officers to 6022 Kingsbury avenue yesterday probably saved a man's life.

Receiving a call that a man's life was in danger, Dispatcher Alfred Baluka signalled his co-worker, Floyd Sitter, who listened in for the address and then sent a car from the Page Boulevard District. Police Sgt. Leroy Bircher and Cpl. Joseph Norris rushed to the address, but found the second floor apartment locked. They borrowed a ladder from a neighbor and entered by breaking a window.

Inside they found a man who said he was Albert Jacobson, an insurance agent, lying on a bed in a dazed condition. Gas jets on a stove in the kitchen were open, but not lighted. Jacobson was taken to City Hospital for treatment and released.

MRS. WALTER H. BURKART DIES; FUNERAL THURSDAY

Mrs. Kathryn M. Burkart, wife of Walter H. Burkart, a retired officer of the F. Burkart Manufacturing Co., died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital of a pulmonary complication following an operation for a fractured hip. She was 70 years old and lived at 10048 Springwood drive, Ladue.

Survivors, in addition to her husband, include a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Ziern, a sister, Mrs. Ann Warman, both of St. Louis county. Funeral services will be Thursday at 10 a.m. at Annunziata Church, 921 Cella road, Ladue, with entombment in Calvary Cemetery.

LOUIS FOX DIES; FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE TOMORROW

Louis Fox, founder and president of Central Clothing and Furniture Co., 4153 Easton avenue, died early today at Jewish Hospital of a heart ailment. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Fox, who lived at 7230 Amherst avenue, University City, founded the clothing and furniture company 17 years ago. Funeral services will be at 3 p.m. tomorrow at the Berger undertaking establishment, 4715 McPherson avenue. Burial will be in Chesed Shel Emeth Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna Fox; a son, Kenneth Fox of St. Louis; four brothers, and a sister.

$77 CONFECTIONERY HOLDUP

A total of $77 was stolen last night by two men who held up a confectionery at 5581 Ridge avenue, police reported. The robbers, both Negroes, were armed. One carried a shotgun and the other had a knife.

Sol Barst, operator of the confectionery, and a customer, Mrs.

Fannie Klarfeld, 1446 Montclair avenue, were ordered to a back room, where $20 was taken from Barst and $7 from Mrs. Klarfeld. A total of $50 was taken from the cash register.

Burke Gains on Bender.
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 9 (AP)—Reports to the Secretary of State today indicated that Senator Thomas A. Burke, Democrat, gained more than 2100 votes in Mahoning county (Youngstown)

In the official count of Tuesday's election returns. If that total holds, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said, it would drop Republican George H. Bender's victory margin over Burke from about 9000 to 7000 votes.

What's your advice for first-time stock buyers?

[ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS WITH SHARE OWNERS]

MR. J. NELSON, Pres., Engraving Co., Detroit, Mich.

My advice is don't jump at some wonder stock you know nothing about but hope might make you rich overnight. Inexperienced investors ought to stick with well-known and reputable companies on which they can get accurate information.

MRS. ARLENE BARRON, Schoolteacher, Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

When I am asked how much money you need to start buying stock, it used to be hard to answer. Now you can buy into the biggest and best companies for as little as $40 a month, through the Monthly Investment Plan. It's a good plan for first-time investors.

MR. CRICHTON HARTILL, Securities Analyst, Jackson Heights, N. Y.

Decide on your objective. One of the broker's first questions is usually, "How conservative do you want to be? Do you want to try to increase your capital or try to get a good return on your money?" Then he advises accordingly.

MRS. J. N. KONDOR, Homemaker, Pittsburgh, Pa.

New investors are perplexed over what stock to buy, as if they had to decide before seeing a broker. Brokers make no charge for advice, and if they advertise "Member of the New York Stock Exchange," that's a good place to get professional advice and help.

Few satisfactions compare with the warm feeling the first dividend from your first stock purchase brings with it. As a part owner of the company, you are sharing in the profits.

But, you may ask, which companies in your opinion are growing? Which are standing still? Which industries appear most likely to profit in months to come? What seems to be the risk?

To help you decide, millions of dollars are spent yearly on research by the Member Firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their aim is to help make you a successful investor, whether you're experienced or new at investing. Write, call or stop in at the Member Firm nearest you. They will be glad to help you.

FREE BOOKLET tells you what stocks are, what cash dividends typical stocks pay, how to buy stocks and about the new Monthly Investment Plan. For free copy of Investment Facts get in touch with your local Member Firm or write the New York Stock Exchange, Dept. 18, P.O. Box 352, New York 5, N. Y.

Dr. Sheppard Told Brother He Had No Part in Crime

in love" with her husband, but "I was never quite sure of Dr. Sheppard."

Mrs. Ahern also reported that another phase of a conversation with Mrs. Sheppard last April dealt with a watch which "Dr. Sheppard bought for a young lady from California."

The prosecution has claimed that this "young lady" was Susan Hayes, a laboratory technician with whom Dr. Sheppard was friendly.

"... Mrs. Sheppard mentioned the watch, and I asked how she knew of it," continued Mrs. Ahern.

The witness quoted Mrs. Sheppard as saying that she either saw Dr. Sheppard write out a check for the watch or found an expense check for the watch.

"I asked her if she was not upset about the watch, and she said she was," she stated.

Defense Objects

The relating of these details followed closely the testimony of Mrs. Ahern at the inquest last summer. Defense Counsel William J. Corrigan vigorously protested against their introduction today.

He said the conversation was not made in the presence of any person other than Mrs. Ahern, but the judge allowed Mrs. Ahern to go ahead.

At the inquest last July, Dr. Sheppard testified that while he was in California, he and Miss Hayes attended a wedding with some friends. Miss Hayes lost her watch on this occasion, and he bought her a replacement, he said.

Mrs. Ahern and her husband, Donald, were the last two outsiders known to have seen Marilyn alive. They were dinner guests at the Sheppard home the night Marilyn was murdered.

Under cross examination by Corrigan, Mrs. Ahern was asked if the Sheppards had exhibited an attitude of love.

"Hard to Answer," she replied. "Mrs. Sheppard seemed very much in love, but I was never quite sure of Dr. Sheppard."

"What did he do to indicate he was not in love?" Corrigan asked.

"Nothing," the witness replied.

Mrs. Ahern also said the Sheppards sat together in the same chair and watched television during part of the evening preceding Mrs. Sheppard's death.

As she testified in a clear voice, Mrs. Ahern toyed with a handkerchief in her lap. She wore a dark blue jacket. Around her throat was a necklace of three or four strands of pearls.

Mrs. Ahern admitted under questioning that she did not tell of the conversation with Mrs. Sheppard when she first testified at the coroner's inquest last summer.

She said she was recalled to the inquest four days after her first appearance, and that it was at that time that she gave the details of the conversation.

Mrs. Ahern said she volunteered to give more information after "some people called me on the telephone and said I was 'evasive.'"

She first regarded the conversation with Mrs. Sheppard as "confidential, and I had not told the police," she said.

Corrigan asked how people (who telephoned Mrs. Ahern) knew of this conversation if it was confidential.

"Not about that conversation, about things in general," the witness replied.

Mrs. Ahern said people had accused her of not telling everything she knew.

Corrigan, in referring to the conversation with Mrs. Sheppard, mentioned the name of Susan Hayes.

"Her name was never mentioned," the witness broke in to say.

Recalls Locked Door.

Mrs. Ahern said she recalled that, before she left the Sheppard home the night prior to the killing she locked the door leading to the beach, and also took the precaution of putting the night chain in place.

The prosecution says this would have made it extremely difficult for the "bushy haired" man Sheppard claims he chased to have time to unlock the door without being caught.

The Aherns, she said, left that night through another door. Corrigan opened the afternoon session with the matter of the locked door.

"Did you ever lock that door before?" he asked Mrs. Ahern.

"No," the witness replied.

At one point Corrigan demanded of Mrs. Ahern:

"You know Sam never laid a hand on Marilyn?"

"Never to my knowledge," Mrs. Ahern agreed.

Corrigan wound up his cross examination by asking Mrs. Ahern why she had "changed" her testimony about Dr. Chapman's conversation with Sheppard.

At the inquest last summer, he said, she said that Sheppard merely discussed a possible divorce with Chapman, then reached his own decision to drop the idea.

Today, he said, she recalled Chapman had "convinced" Sheppard Marilyn was "the right one for him and he was going to try to make a fresh start."

"I was told to tell what happened to the best of my recollection," Mrs. Ahern said, "and that's what I did both times."

She was then excused from the witness stand, to which she was preceded by her husband.

Ahern, a slender six-foot-two man who runs a transportation service and odor removing firm, painted a rather cozy picture yesterday of the Sheppards.

Ahern said he and his wife visited the couple on the night preceding the killing.

Dr. Sheppard sat on the floor at the feet of his wife while watching television and later the two affectionately occupied the same chair, Ahern testified.

Mrs. Sheppard, in fact, cooked a favorite berry pie for her husband that night, Ahern said.

And last February, the witness testified, he and his wife shared the same room with the Sheppards while on a weekend trip to a Pennsylvania ski lodge.

Defense Attorney Corrigan inquired how the Sheppards got along.

"Well, I don't recall anything unusual," said Ahern. "They seemed to get along pretty well."

Corrigan asked Ahern what he thought of Dr. Sheppard.

"I felt Sam always was a very straightforward person," the witness answered. "I enjoyed his company."

"He was a good decent fellow, wasn't he?" Corrigan asked.

Ahern agreed.

DELAYED JAPANESE GET ON TRACKS, STOP TRAIN

TOKYO, Nov. 9 (AP)—Japanese train passengers have scored revenge for downtrodden commuters everywhere.

About 30 of them, delayed on a branch line on Hokkaido island, missed connections with a train. They asked the station master to stop the next train, a through express.

The station master refused, so the passengers gathered on the tracks, forced the express to halt, and climbed aboard.

PREDICTS SCHOOL REPORT SUPPORT BY 6 ON BOARD

Schlaflly Expects Them to Indorse Major Reforms Urged in Non-Teaching Survey.

At least six members of the Board of Education will support major recommendations of the A. T. Kearney & Co. report on non-teaching activities of the public school system, it was predicted yesterday by Daniel Schlaflly, a member of the board.

Addressing a meeting of the education committee of the St. Louis League of Women Voters, Schlaflly said he personally would indorse most of the report but would reserve final judgment until the board's four executive officers gave their opinions.

Schlaflly did not name the other five members whom he believed would vote in favor of instituting reforms suggested by the Kearney company, Chicago business consultant firm which studied non-instructional activities here.

The Kearney report estimated that operation of the non-teaching school divisions was costing taxpayers $1,487,000 a year more than it should.

In answer to a question, Schlaflly pointed out that the 12-man School Board originally voted 6 to 5 to authorize the Kearney survey. One member, J. Harry Pohlman, was absent because of illness.

Members who voted in favor of the study were H.M. Stolar, now board president, Henry O. Whiteside, Clem F. Stockman, Louis H. Antoine, Charles H. Christel and Schlaflly. Opposed were Oscar A. Ehrhardt, Charles J. Dyer, Mrs. Irma H. Friede, James F. Morrell and Dr. James J. McCaffery.

Schlaflly cited "basic savings" which the report contemplated and said he believed many of these could be put into effect. But he emphasized that opinions presented by the executive officers should be carefully considered.

Schlaflly said all four executive officers already have indorsed a Kearney recommendation for a centralized personnel department. The officers are scheduled to present their opinions on the report to the board's evaluation committee later this month.

MONSANTO PRESIDENT NAMED TO U.S. FUEL STUDY GROUP

Charles A. Thomas, president of Monsanto Chemical Co., has been appointed chairman of a three-man group to study the problems of supplying enough petroleum for military operations in the Pacific in event of war, the Office of Defense Mobilization announced yesterday.

The groups work will cover the entire problem of transporting petroleum to the West coast, the availability of crude oil, and an analysis of the capacity of petroleum refineries in the area to meet wartime requirements.

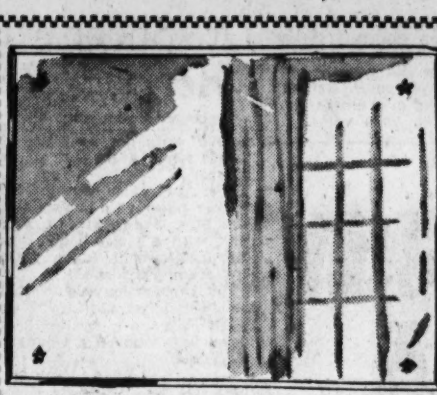

The other two members are Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post, and Charles S. Cheston, Philadelphia industrialist.

SOCIALISTS GAIN SEAT IN CANADA IN BY-ELECTIONS

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent's opposition picked up one House of Commons seat in six by-elections held yesterday but his governing Liberal party still holds a comfortable 73-vote majority. The Liberals retained four of the seats at stake in the voting, held to fill vacancies from deaths or resignations. The Progressive Conservatives retained another. The opposition gain came in Manitoba where W. A. Bryce of the socialist CCF (Co-operative Commonwealth Federation) regained the seat he had lost to Liberal R. J. Wood in the 1953 general election. Among the Liberal winners was Transport Minister George Marler, who won Montreal's St. Antoine-Westmount seat vacated when Finance Minister Douglas Abbott resigned to become a justice of the supreme court.

NEW BUILDING PLANNED FOR 5TH AVE. IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Plans were announced yesterday for a new, 34-story office building on the west side of Fifth avenue between Fifty-second and Fifty-third streets. It is scheduled to be opened in 1957. Norman Tishman, the builder, said the structure would harmonize architecturally with Rockefeller Center, a block away. Nine smaller buildings on the property will be razed. The project's cost was estimated at $40,000,000. The Tishman Realty & Construction Co. purchased the property from the Associated Dry Goods Corp., which acquired it as a possible new site for its Lord & Taylor department store. Lord & Taylor, however, has abandoned plans to move uptown from its present location at Thirty-Eighth and Fifth.

MISUSE OF SANTA CRITICIZED

LONDON, Nov. 9 (INS)—The Conference of the National

Chamber of Trade has passed a resolution blasting the appearance of Santa Claus as a sales attraction in shops earlier and earlier each year. Delegate after delegate deplored the tendency

Here's what St. Louisans say about Chevrolet ...55's Greatest New Cars

We asked "What do you like most about the
'55 Motoramic Chevrolet?"

First day buyer, Mrs. Rose Monaco of 5216 Miami, says: "The best thing about the new Chevrolet is owning one! We came to look as soon as the doors opened, and fell in love with—and bought—a Bel Air 2-door."

"There's plenty of head room, even though this new Chevrolet is lower. I'm 6'4" tall, and even I can get into this car with my hat on, without getting it crushed. And there's plenty of leg room. It's beautiful...and built for comfort, too."

DON NIES
8505 Grantshire Lane, Affton
Printing Salesman

"As far as appearance, this is plenty of car for anybody. It has the sleek, modern lines of the most expensive automobiles. And the new outrigger rear springs—moved outside the chassis—make practical sense."

DONALD E. HANLON
418 Carswell Dr., Clayton Consulting Engineer

"I'm particularly impressed by the matching interior colors—and the accessories. The kind of decorating I'd choose for my own home. And the vinyl fabrics are scuff-proof, I know. As a mother of three children, that's important to me."

MRS. JUNE MALIN
327 Oakley Lane, Kirkwood
Housewife

"Sure like the way the back seat folds flat on the 4-door Beauville Station Wagon. Looks like about nine feet of usable space in the back... plenty of room for ladders. This I can use in my business and for pleasure."

POLICY CONFLICT DEVELOPS AT TALKS ON GATT

Eisenhower Presses for U.S. Program — Briton, Frenchman Disagree.

By DON COOK
The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Staffer

GENEVA, Nov. 9—President Eisenhower, in a message to the conference on revision of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, said yesterday that when Congress reconvenes in January early action will be "pressed" to complete his Administration's international trade program.

However, policy statements from other governments at the first meeting of the 34 nations which adhere to the GATT charter quickly showed a fundamental divergence of views between the United States and others on just how the agreement should now be revised after seven years of operation. Cabinet ministers or ambassadors from Britain, France, Ceylon, Belgium and Canada spoke.

Mr. Eisenhower, in a letter read by Assistant Secretary of State Samuel C. Vaughn, said that while "the interests of participating countries may at times seem to conflict," nevertheless he felt that the objective of economic strength and well-being of all peoples was such that "the session must be a practical demonstration of the ability of free countries to reach agreement."

He said he "looks forward to early action" from the new Congress on "the remaining parts, especially the heart of our program—the extension and amendment of our Trade Agreements Act."

The two principal policy speeches yesterday came from French Finance Minister Edgar Faure and British Board of Trade President Peter Thorneycroft.

Thorneycroft outlined a specific set of British ideas on how to strengthen the GATT agreement more or less on its present basis. The United States would like to see some change in the present basis. Faure, however, disappointed many delegates by a somewhat rambling discourse which appeared to be carrying French policy away from the multi-lateral GATT concept of handling world trade problems and back to either straight "economic nationalism" or, at best, regional groupings such as the office for European economic co-operation.

Thorneycroft's proposals for strengthening GATT run counter to United States ideas on several counts, and represent the complete reversal of the roles of the two countries since 1946, when GATT was first negotiated at the drive and insistence of the United States against a somewhat doubtful Britain.

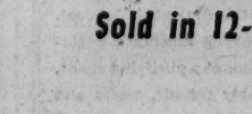

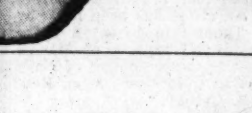

In the first place, Thorneycroft came out for leaving the present GATT "organization" more or less as it is—that is, only a small secretariat of 30 or so people in Geneva with no real organizational structure, comparable, for example, to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization. The United States, in President Eisenhower's message, took the position that "it would seem essential that an effective organization be established for the administration of the agreement and otherwise to promote an expansion of world trade."

Thorneycroft said Britain believes that the present big loophole in the GATT agreement, by which nations can invoke quota restrictions against imports from other countries if they are in balance-of-payments difficulties, should be left as it stands. He proposed some new laws for the future, looking toward the time when currencies would be more freely convertible and countries presumably "in balance" on foreign trade, but essentially Britain is content with the status quo.

This, the United States opposes because quota restrictions are working against American exports, and America wants some definite steps toward reducing quotas before it proceeds any further in reducing tariffs.

Thorneycroft also proposed that the present "freeze" on existing tariff ceilings until June 1955 be continued until June 1957. The United States position on this point is not yet known.

SPARKMAN SAYS 'POLITICS' COLORS INQUIRY ON FHA

Capehart Denounces Democratic Senator's Appraisal as '100 Per Cent Wrong.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Senator Sparkman (Dem., Ala.), said today that "politics" had colored much of the Senate Banking Committee's housing inquiry.

Sparkman, who serves on the committee, said he would be glad to have the Democrats continue the inquiry next year when they take control. But he said he would insist on a nonpartisan inquiry "and not a witch hunt." He termed the investigation which Capehart has been running as "not very realistic to date."

The committee has been investigating various irregularities in federal housing operations, concentrating on alleged "windfall" profits made by builders in a postwar apartment construction program now expired. Such profits accrued when construction costs amounted to less than the amount of government-insured loans granted for the projects.

Capehart has estimated total windfalls at $500,000,000. Capehart scheduled a windup of the present phase of the investigation after taking testimony today from Richard McCormack of Vienna, Va., an at-

TYPHOON SMASHES LUZON; THOUSANDS HOMELESS, 5 DEAD

MANILA, Nov. 9 (AP)—Typhoon Ruby roared across the South China Sea toward the Chinese mainland today, leaving five known dead in the Philippines, tens of thousands homeless and untold millions of dollars in damage.

The winds tore down communications lines and left much of central and northern Luzon, the main Philippine island, out of touch with the rest of the world.

The late-season storm smashed across Luzon yesterday with 120-mile-an-hour winds. Vast tracts of farmland were flooded, flimsy dwellings were swept ruthlessly aside, telephone poles broke like matchsticks and highways were cut in countless places.

TOKYO, Nov. 9 (AP)—Weather experts of nine nations today opened a four-day symposium on typhoon detection and warning under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

torney. Capehart said McCormack had refused to honor a previous committee subpoena.

The Republican chairman took exception to Sparkman's characterization of the housing inquiry as "political."

He said Sparkman had not been present for a single one of the many public and secret Banking Committee hearings, and added:

"He never was any more wrong in his life. The record proves that he is 100 per cent wrong."

Capehart urged that the investigation be continued throughout next year. He is due to be replaced as committee chairman by Senator Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), when the Democrats take control of Congress in January.

Fulbright said he had not given much thought as yet to the question of continuing the inquiry. Some other Democrats, asking not to be named, said the biggest job still to be done is in the hands of the Justice Department, now seeking indictments and convictions of housing operators accused of wrongdoing.

NAVY REPORTED SEEKING FULL MARINE CONTROL

Sources Say Effort Is Being Made to Put Corps Under Chief of Naval Operations.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—A backstage battle over the future status of the Marine Corps is reported in the Pentagon.

Informed sources who declined to be quoted by name said the issue is whether the Marines will come under complete command of the Chief of Naval Operations or will remain under the Secretary of the Navy.

An informant said Secretary Charles Thomas now has on his desk an order, with a request that he sign it, which would put the Marines under supervision of the Naval operations chief.

Official Pentagon spokesmen declined to comment.

The general interpretation of a law passed a year ago is understood to be that the Marines shall be under the Navy Secretary with the Navy's top uniformed officer having only operational control over them. That law set a minimum Marine establishment of three divisions and three Marine air wings.

A special study of the organization of the Navy headed by Thomas S. Gates reported in April that the Navy Secretary had issued policy directives making it clear that the commandant of the Marine Corps was considered directly under the control of the Navy Secretary.

Since then, pro-Marine sources say, an effort has been made to get Thomas to issue an order bringing all aspects of Marine activities under control of Navy Chief of Operations, Adm. Robert B. Carney.

The reported purpose is to give the Navy chief greater leeway in the use of appropriations. Generally speaking, funds for the Marines are included in the Navy budget.

In adopting a minimum level for the Marine Corps, Congress made it clear, the informants say, that it did not intend to have the Marines reduced in size or eliminated by budgetary or other considerations. The congressional bill also provided that the commandant of the Marine Corps should be called in by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in a position of equality for the discussion of problems directly involving the Marines.

Pro-Marine sources contend that, if Thomas approves the request to put the Marines directly under the Chief of Naval Operations, the result could be a gradual chipping down of total Marine strength.

If so, the informants said, a

MEYER-FRANCE WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE ON BUDGET

Victory Gives Him 'Political Safe-Conduct' for U.S. Trip This Weekend.

PARIS, Nov. 9 (UP)—Premier Meyer-France won a parliamentary confidence vote today in support of his new budget. The vote gave him a "political safe-conduct" for his trip to the United States this weekend.

The official count of the National Assembly ballot gave the Premier a vote of 321 to 207 in opposition.

Victory was assured when the Socialists, with 105 votes, agreed to support his program shortly before the balloting began.

In voting confidence in Meyer-France, the Assembly overrode the adverse recommendations of its powerful Finance Committee which had recommended rejection of the Premier's budget for the Ministry of Postal Services, Telephones and Telegraphs.

In spite of the favorable results, the vote marked a turning point in the tangled currents of French political life.

For the first time the Popular Republicans—France's Christian Democrats—dared to vote against the Premier openly. Up to now their opposition has been confined to the prudent abstention of members. The voting put the strongly Catholic group in the strange position of voting with the Communists.

Communists, however, said, is something Meyer-France will not soon forget.

Socialist support for the Government would enable Meyer-France to carry out promised and badly needed reforms. Guy Mollet, the Socialist national secretary general, met with the Premier last night in an effort to clarify their positions, but reported no visible results.

Mollet said it would all be up to the special Socialist Party congress which starts tomorrow.

PRIEST ASSAILED FOR REMARK ON ANTI-MCCARTHY FUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Three officers of Freedom House criticized the Rev. Magr. Edward Martin yesterday for a statement that a $5,000,000 fund was set up to oust Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wiscon.).

The statement of the officers said, was "a figment of the imagination of those who persuaded him (the monsignor) to make the charge, which under normal circumstances would be unworthy of attention."

The statement added: "We resent this statement because it can only lead to the spread of bigotry and intolerance. It bears false witness and breeds dissension at a time when all Americans must be united in support of freedom and in opposition to the designs of imperialistic Communism."

The officers who signed the statement are Whitney North Seymour, board chairman; Dr. Harry D. Gideonson, president, and the Rev. George B. Ford, pastor of Corpus Christi Roman Catholic Church and a vice president of Freedom House.

Freedom House is a private organization set up in 1941 with the aim of advancing ideals of freedom.

GEORGE HENEGHAN ELECTED HEAD OF CATHOLIC CHARITIES

George E. Heneghan, St. Louis attorney, was elected president of the National Conference of Catholic Charities at the organization's annual meeting today in Pittsburgh. The conference co-ordinates the work of all Catholic charitable organizations in the United States.

A layman active in Catholic groups for many years, Heneghan is vice president of the Catholic Charities of St. Louis and since 1951 has been president of the metropolitan council of the St. Vincent de Paul Society. He was elected first vice president of the National Conference of Catholic Charities in 1952.

COLOMBO, Nov. 9 (AP)—Ceylonese Premier Sir John Kotelawala will give President Eisenhower a sterling silver inkstand and calendar when he pays an official visit to the American Chief Executive this month. Kotelawala leaves here tomorrow for Britain and America.

His gift, made by Ceylonese craftsmen, is in the form of an ancient Ceylonese temple with octagonal pillars and traditional type doorway. Two gold vases mounted on the lids of the two inkwells signify fertility and prosperity.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy for the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Setting for the Synthetic?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is a time of crisis for our Symphony Orchestra and for many of the other great orchestras across the United States. It is a season when the business end of the orchestra organization wonders how it will ever see its way through another.

At a time when the appreciation of immortal music is at its highest level in our land, as indicated by the volume of classical record sales and the repertoire offered in the catalogs, it seems strange that we should have to be pleaded with to get us to attend live concerts.

The high fidelity reproduction equipment market is booming. Thousands have spent small fortunes in acquiring the gear advertised to achieve the seemingly unattainable quality of "presence" for the recorded performance in their own home.

And all this time, right in Kiel Auditorium, it is possible to get the real thing—actual presence—for the comparatively small cost of an admission ticket.

For almost four years now I have been in the Navy, stationed on the East Coast. During that time I have heard the efforts of the orchestras of Norfolk, Jacksonville and Orlando. While the rise of these orchestras has been spectacular and the sound they produce is wholly acceptable it takes only one concert to realize what an asset our own orchestra is to St. Louis.

To have to replace it would take years of work and a great deal of money. It is a well established fact that were the orchestra to play in Convention hall the paid admissions would not make up the cost of a performance. But until a solution is found to this greater problem let's not, as individual music lovers, be found elsewhere during a performance while the seat we could have occupied goes idle.

MUSIC STARVED ST. LOUISAN.

Monstrosity in the Mail

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I agree most heartily with protests against "junk mail." There was a time when this so-called "junk" was thrown on your porch and the wind blew it all over the neighborhood. Now the mailman must put it in your box.

It is a crime to burden the carrier with this "junk" plus all the congressional free mail. It is helping keep the Post Office in the red.

Congress cannot raise the pay of our carriers—yet they permit this monstrosity! Ask your carrier how he feels about it!

WILLIAM POLSTER.

'No' to a Zone Plan

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

With respect to the new fare rise and zone system asked for, I speak months in Los Angeles which has a zoning, check and complicated transfer system.

It is so difficult for a newcomer that going from north Los Angeles to Griffith Park and return, I paid four different fares ranging from 25 to 35 cents. I figured that on these four trips I put 32 cents excess fare in the box.

It cost me at least $1.50 in excess fares to learn the complicated system. With Los Angeles's million or so of transients a year the take in excess fares due to ignorance must be impressive. No wonder the carrier wants a zoning system.

Moreover, there is a constant squabble between passengers and drivers on account of the zone system. I witnessed probably a dozen on the few rides I took. So the difficulty was not confined to me.

My guess is that if the city fathers do not spike this latest, and seemingly never-to-end raid on the rider's purse, there will be a disgruntled electorate in this town and county.

MARVIN BOONE, President, Lay Advisory Committee.

Speaking of Animals

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Reader M. M. Carline won't have to worry about the Democrats turning our Capitol into a jackass. Every jackass is worth its salt. The white elephants in the Capitol are the things that are worrying us. G.J.M.

Splitting the AEC

Chairman Strauss's failure to obtain the Atomic Energy Commission's signature to the Dixon-Yates contract Monday suggests with growing emphasis the dissension which is tearing apart that unhappy agency.

On Saturday, members of the Senate-House Joint Committee expressed doubt that they could properly pass judgment on the contract before it was signed. Adm. Strauss then agreed to submit it to a vote of his five-member commission Monday morning, and expressed the hope that the signed contract could be delivered to the joint committee later in the day.

Instead, after the meeting of the atomic commission Monday, it was announced that a vote had not even been taken, and that the commission "contemplated its ability to report on the matter by Thursday a.m." This was a far cry from Mr. Strauss's optimistic expectations of two days before, for the commission did not promise a signed contract even on Thursday.

Commissioner Thomas E. Murray lifted a corner of the curtain on AEC's interior conflict in his testimony to the joint committee Saturday. He declared Chairman Strauss had long kept him in the dark about the Dixon-Yates negotiations, had usurped authority in handling the contract, and that in consequence the commission had been diverted from its grave tasks and its "non-political character seriously impaired."

These accusations recall Adm. Strauss's efforts last summer to have himself designated by Congress as "principal officer" of AEC, a move which might have gone far toward placing the commission under one-man rule. Mr. Murray opposed the move at that time, along with Commissioner Henry D. Smyth, since resigned. The question that now arises is whether Adm. Strauss is continuing his efforts to gain personal control over the Atomic Energy Commission, with Dixon-Yates as the immediate instrument.

In a memo to President Eisenhower June 15, referring to the President's pending directive to AEC to sign the Dixon-Yates contract, Budget Director Hughes wrote: "Adm. Strauss is hopeful that this will be a sufficient basis for Messrs. Smyth and Zuckert to support him in completing the contract." (Eugene M. Zuckert, whose term has since expired, had joined with Dr. Smyth in protesting against the contract.)

Later on, Chairman Strauss told the joint committee that he takes complete responsibility for everything done by AEC's former general manager, Walter J. Williams, in bringing about the Dixon-Yates contract.

No word here of the responsibilities of his four fellow-members. Yet only one other member of the AEC, Joseph Campbell, who favored making Adm. Strauss "principal officer," has ever voted with the chairman in favor of the Dixon-Yates contract. Of President Eisenhower's two recent appointees, Willard F. Libby left the room when the latest vote was taken, and John von Neumann had not yet been sworn in.

The damaging effects which Dixon-Yates, with its public subsidy for high-cost private power, might have on the Tennessee Valley Authority, have been evident all along. The new question that arises is whether the effects may not be exceedingly damaging to AEC.

AEC's missions of stockpiling nuclear bombs and developing beneficial uses of the atom call for the best brains of all five of its commissioners. And they call for a commission whose members are capable of working harmoniously together. And they call for the opportunity for the commission to keep its mind on its business, free of extraneous distractions.

All these requirements are frustrated by the continued embroilment of AEC in the question of how TVA is to be supplied with power.

How to Save $51,000

Thor W. Bruce is the head of the Board of Education's auditing department. As such he is one of the four quasi-independent executives who run the St. Louis public school system and compete for a share of its $25,000,000 budget. This is just about half the annual cost of running the City of St. Louis.

Auditor Bruce's budget, principally for salaries of his staff of 27, runs to $137,000 this year. That is a mere drop in the bucket when compared to the giants of the system—Superintendent of Instruction Hickey's $19,000,000 allotment, or the $4,400,000 set aside for Building Commissioner Rhodes, or even the $1,601,036 appropriated for Secretary-Treasurer Wiethaupt.

But the significance of the Bruce budget, as indeed it is with the others as well, is what he does with it. A. T. Kearney & Co., the Chicago business consultants who studied the non-teaching operations of the school system, alleges much of the money is going into "deliberate duplications" and old-fashioned work methods.

According to the report, reorganization of the administrative procedures dealing with finance and accounting in all departments could save the school system about $152,000 a year. This would be accomplished generally by eliminating the useless shuffling of paper back and forth across departmental lines. In Mr. Bruce's department alone, the saving would amount to $51,000—which is close to half his budget.

Since the Kearney report cost the taxpayers $50,000, they presumably could actually make a slight profit on it from reorganization in Mr. Bruce's department alone.

They could, that is, if the School Board sees fit to order the Kearney reorganization into effect.

Storm Cloud Over Bonn

On the Bonn horizon there is one of those clouds no larger than a man's fist. It is the notice served on Chancellor Adenauer by the Free Democrats, the most mercurial element in his ruling coalition, that they will not vote to ratify the new London-Paris agreement unless the Saar question is reopened.

Dr. Adenauer has yielded to this ultimatum to the extent of promising to ask Premier Mendès-France's chief of cabinet to come to Bonn for further talks on a secondary level. In this way he may be seeking to mollify his troublesome supporters, instead of precipitating an immediate crisis. But Paris immediately declined the invitation.

That France will accept any serious modification of the agreement so ardently negotiated, however, seems improbable. So there is the possibility that while the French parliament was the breaking point for EDC, the German parliament may become the barrier to realization of the substitute arrangements.

Dr. Adenauer has shown himself to be a political tactician of resourcefulness and force. His winning of constitutional sanction for German re-arming is an example. So he may find a way around this threat. He may be able to convince the Bundestag that a relatively minor matter should not be made a barrier to Germany's return to sovereignty and a place in the grand alliance of the West.

If the planned plebiscite in the Saar could be held before the German showdown on ratification, and if the Saarlanders voted to accept Europeanization, much ground would be cut from under Adenauer's opposition in Bonn. Yet these Saarlanders have an odd logic of their own. Prosperous as they were under the old League of Nations mandate, they voted overwhelmingly for reattachment to Germany as soon as they got the chance—even Hitler's Germany!

Now they are well pleased with the fruits of integration in the French economy, but they grumble about being Germans cut off from Germany. The last has not been heard from them.

Statesmanship, both in Paris and in Bonn, would keep the Saar on the European shelf while greater works were brought into being. Dr. Adenauer has trouble on his hands. But that does not mean that the Old Gentleman may not make good sense prevail.

Time to Stop It

The details about the latest plane incident in the Orient, as reported by the United States Government are as follows:

The American RB-29 was not over Soviet territory, as the Communists say, but "over Japanese territory in the Hokkaido area." It was never closer than 15 miles to Soviet ground. It did not fire a single shot.

Yet it was attacked without warning by two Soviet MIG fighters and shot down in flames. Eleven Americans were forced to bail out and one, Second Lt. Sigfredo Angulo of Los Angeles, lost his life in the sea into which his parachute carried him.

If these are the facts, and we know of no reason to question them, then the Soviet planes were guilty of the grossest breach of international comity. The note delivered to the Soviet Foreign Ministry by Ambassador Bohlen is not an iota too strong.

The American people will expect the Soviet Government to make all "the moral and material reparations" that lie within its power. Washington should accept nothing less.

It is impossible for Americans to square such incidents as this wanton shooting with Moscow's honeyed words of conciliation, "co-existence," and peace. If the Soviets want these words to make any impression, they must find a way to curb their trigger-happy border watchers.

It goes without saying that American planes must scrupulously avoid Chinese or Russian territory on their flights. And it is just as plain that when our aircraft have avoided crossing over Communist territory, any attack on them comes as virtually an attack on the United States. Washington is none too strong in this latest protest. It should persist until Russia tells what the unquestioned facts were and makes any appropriate amends.

Kansas City It Is

It's official. It's settled. It's permanent. The Philadelphia Athletics are going to move out where the Kaw meets the Missouri, and that's final. It is the conclusion of a story which had more endings than a soap opera.

Anyhow, after first being about to move, and then being about to stay, the A's and their new owner, Arnold Johnson, finally won the approval of American League club owners to pick up their bats and go West. The final score was 6 to 2. Even Spike Briggs of the Detroit Tigers, who was opposed to Kansas City, has got tired of "all the wrangling," though it took him longer than most folk.

Now if St. Louis is no longer a two-club city, Missouri is at least a two-club state. And since the Athletics will be at one end and the Cardinals at the other, the next baseball project we recommend will be the extension of four lanes on Highway 40.

The President Goes to the Bench

For his second nomination to the United States Supreme Court, President Eisenhower has chosen Judge John Marshall Harlan of the Federal Court of Appeals at New York. Unexpected though the choice is, it may turn out to be one of Mr. Eisenhower's very best appointments.

In the first place, Justice-designate Harlan is a man of broad education and culture. A native of Chicago, he went as a Rhodes scholar from Princeton to historic Balliol College, Oxford, where he distinguished himself as a student of jurisprudence.

A member of the New York bar for 30 years, he has served as an assistant State's Attorney in New York City and as chief counsel for the New York State Crime Commission. Last March Mr. Harlan was appointed by President Eisenhower to the Federal Court of Appeals at New York City which serves the three states of New York, Connecticut and Vermont.

This has been the most celebrated of federal appellate courts. It is widely known as the "Court of the Hands," after its two most distinguished members for the last quarter century. These were the famous judicial cousins, both recently retired: Augustus Noble Hand, who died last week, and Learned Hand, who continues almost as active and bright as ever, even though he too is well beyond the 80-year mark.

Although Judge Harlan's tenure on the appellate court has been only since last March, the reports on him must have been good or he surely would not have been elevated over senior Republican appellate judges such as Orin L. Phillips at Denver and John J. Parker at Richmond. Undoubtedly a strong factor in his favor was his age of 55. The President said he hoped to find a jurist with "15 or 20 years to serve" and Judge Harlan would seem to meet that desire.

The country may be glad that the President resisted whatever temptation there may have been to appoint Secretary of State Dulles, Gov. Dewey or Attorney General Brownell. The White House passed over the bench in choosing Chief Justice Warren and it would have been a blow to the career personnel on the courts had it passed over the ranks of judges a second time.

The new Justice will carry a great name to the Supreme Court. Sixty years ago one of the most valued members of the highest bench was John Marshall Harlan, his grandfather. The first Harlan became the "Great Dissenter" because he lived so far ahead of his time. Indeed, when the present court unanimously decided the public school segregation cases in favor of equal rights, it merely applied the dissenting views of the first Justice Harlan, expressed in the memorable Plessy case in 1896.

We wish for the new John Marshall Harlan service as distinguished and as forward-looking.

HOW MUCH LONGER ON THE HOOK?

The Artist on the Frontier

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Little was known of vast Louisiana Territory in 1804 but by close of century artists had recorded the dramatic facts from landscape to Indians and passing of frontier; Art Museum director tells story for special collection now on exhibition.

From Essays by Perry Rathbone, City Art Museum Director, in "Westward the Way," Published With the Current Exhibition for the 150th Anniversary of Louisiana Purchase

When title to the vast Louisiana Territory was delivered to the infant Republic in 1804, of its 830,000 square miles of mountain, plain and river, except for New Orleans, had never been described in pictorial terms.

By the close of the century that followed there was hardly an aspect of this dramatically varied immensity of land that had not inspired the artist's brush or pencil.

Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, when dispatched by President Jefferson in 1804 on an exploratory expedition westward, set forth into a wilderness. Yet before a century had passed the last frontier had disappeared. Through these years an increasing demand for the image of the West stirred up the artist to venture beyond the Mississippi.

The territory offered boundless subject matter for landscape and gradually this terra incognita with its fabulous mountains, oceanic plains and endless waterways which had captured the imagination of the world was revealed in sketch book, on canvas and in countless prints from the lithographer's stone and the engraver's plate.

Art Marches With the Army

Among these men are some of the best known painters of nineteenth century America, such as George Catlin, George Caleb Bingham, Worthington Whittredge and Albert Bierstadt. Some were visiting Europeans.

In a surprising number of instances it was the Army or an official Government expedition that provided the means of bringing the artist into the West. In fact it was as an official member of Major Stephen H. Long's expedition to the foot of the Rockies that Samuel Seymour, the English-born topographic artist of Philadelphia, made the first landscapes beyond the Mississippi in 1819-20. Similarly it was a United States geological survey that carried Thomas Moran into the fabulous region of the Yellowstone 50 years later.

Two of the most important and productive artists of the West accompanied private expeditions. These were Charles Bodmer, the Swiss who traveled with the veteran explorer and naturalist, the German princeling from the Rhineland, Maximilian of Wied, in 1833; and Alfred Jacob Miller who accompanied Sir William Drummond Stewart, the Scottish sportsman, in 1837.

Endurance, Skill and Tact

Of all the phases of the life of the West that were radically altered or destroyed by the Purchase of Louisiana, none held greater fascination for the artist than the Indian. In Jefferson's Administration thousands of Indians of many tribes roamed the huge mid-continent. By 1900, despoiled of their primeval holdings and wild freedom, they existed only in reservations under surveillance of the Government.

Meanwhile it was the artist who, at prodigious expense of endurance, patience and tact, and with countless miles of travel, created a precious record of the Indians of the Plains in their natural state before that life disappeared. A large part of American ethnology is based upon this record. The most important contributors were the great painters of the Indian: George Catlin, Charles Bodmer, Seth Eastman and John Mix Stanley, who were chiefly active in the '30s, '40s and '50s.

The tireless Catlin, inspired to paint all the Indian tribes of North America before they should vanish "to the shades of their fathers," voyaged up the Mississippi, then the Missouri, and then went south to Arkansas and New Orleans. For eight years he traveled, painting upwards of 500 canvases.

Only once in his known work did George Caleb Bingham relax his interest in landscape. Missouri politics and the life of the boatman to paint a purely Indian subject. This picture, "The Concealed Enemy," representing an Osage brave in ambush, was painted about 1850 and is published in "Westward the Way" for the first time.

The Western pioneer, in search of new homes, of gold, of new opportunities and religious freedom created history of such epic character that we could wish the pictorial record were more complete. (The works on exhibit) show us the men who habitually penetrated the farthest reaches of the frontier, the French Canadian voyageurs, the trappers and mountain men, the emigrants in their trains of covered wagons.

They give us a glimpse of Army camp life on the plains; they emphasize the vigorous life of the established communities of Missouri. As a companion of Albert Bierstadt wrote in 1858: "I doubt if there be any country but Kansas and Nebraska where the brush follows so hard on the rifle."

Bingham and Bierstadt are bywords, but who has heard of Mrs. S. B. Abbe of William Baldwin and Anna Maria von Phul? The latter young woman who migrated from Kentucky to St. Louis in the second decade of the nineteenth century created the only pictorial impression, except for portraits, of the inhabitants of the small Creole town near the confluence of the Mississippi and the Missouri about 1818. These little water-colors of exceptional charm and freshness vividly convey the refinement and grace that life assumed in a frontier community.

—George Catlin

Snow-Shoe Dance of the Ojibway

The Indian fighters of the last two decades of the century, the cowboy and the rancher, were recorded by the painstaking Thomas Eakins, the Philadelphia realist, on a brief visit to the West in the '80s, while Frederic Remington celebrated their wild and exciting life in a brilliant series of paintings familiar to almost everyone.

A thousand miles beyond the Father of Waters the fortified posts of the fur traders multiplied and in time were supplanted by the frontier forts of the Army. A spirit of pride in this prodigious and swift accomplishment was soon reflected in the portraits of the new habitations of the white man.

And Few Covered Wagons

That pride was apparent in the first of such views that the obscure topographic artist, Bouquet de Woiser, made of New Orleans in 1804. That spirit continued to inspire his numerous successors, the most important of whom was John Casper Wild, the Swiss who specialized in the field, having come first to Philadelphia, then settled in St. Louis about 1840.

The history of American expansion has left us two unmistakable symbols of the West, the covered wagon and the steamboat. It is a curious fact that the stirring spectacle of this pageant of commerce inspired so few artists of distinction. The contemporary record must be credited largely to printmakers and the artists they employed as a commercial enterprise.

SHOCKING LIFE, by Elie Schiaparelli. (E. P. Dutton and Co., Inc., $4.)

This autobiography of the great clothes designer is not shocking, but a vivid and exciting story of the personal life of an intense, honest, and brilliantly talented woman.

As a little Italian girl, her love of beauty was so fierce that she planted flower seeds in her throat, ears and mouth in order to have a face covered with flowers like a heavenly garden. At 14 she published a book of poetry of which she says she could not have realized what she was writing and, grown-up, would blush to say aloud a small part of what she wrote.

She was still very young when she went to Paris to escape a marriage her family wanted. There she went to a ball and made her first evening dress, draping blue and orange scarfs about herself, zouave style, saving some material for a turban, because she had no more money for a hairdresser. But the pins gave way, disastrously—her first, sensational creation and her first failure as a couturiere.

An unhappy marriage in London and a baby to support, later sent her back again to Paris where her ability to make frier appeared. Paul Poiret and Jean-Michel Frank to her help. With an Armenian peasant woman she designed and had made the first famous Schiaparelli sweater. With its success she became daring and learned a few principles about clothes, principles made by herself, such as: "The more the body is respected, the better the dress acquires vitality."

"Bring the bust back into its own; pad the shoulders and stop the ugly slouch!"

She made a sweater with white lines following the design of ribs, so that a woman appeared to be seen through an X-ray. She designed fish wriggling on the stomach for a bathing suit.

Throughout her career she had loved elegance, and fabrics and exotic colors. She stayed in a baronial castle in Scotland where she could touch as well as see the wonderful tartans of some 30 children who lived there. The Schiaparelli newspaper fabric, which made thousands of scarfs and handkerchiefs, was inspired by the newspaper hats worn by fishermen in the rain.

But her story is not only a story of the many-colored world of fashion and her friends of the haute monde. It is also the story of a woman who was bitterly aware of the meaning of Mussolini in her country, who gave up her career for three years during the war to stay in America as an independent, unofficial, but passionate representative of France, her adopted country, a woman who had to be both father and mother to a beautiful child crippled by infantile paralysis.

The book is illustrated in color and in black and white.

NELLY CONVERSE PUTZEL.

Elegant Low-Brow Stuff

THE SATURDAY BOOK 14. Edited by John Hadfield. (Macmillan, 35.)

The appearance of this fourteenth issue of the justly popular British Christmas annual is a reminder that our own giftbook season is fast approaching. "The Saturday Book" is uniquely British in its high-brow treatment of low-brow themes. The present issue has several such examples, as, for instance, a learned article by historian James Laver on "The Natural History of the Chorus Girl," illustrated by some slightly scandalous photographs. So, too, John Montgomery tells the story of that once-funny fat man, the late Roscoe Arbuckle, who made an unfortunate exit from the movies and is seldom spoken of nowadays. The polished prose is elegantly illustrated, and the whole volume is marked by that graceful wit of which this verse, by our own Ogden Nash, is a representative sample.

Hem go up, hem go down,
Sing the bells of Paris town.
Sing the golden anthers famous,
Sing Te Dior Adonamus.

Strategy for the Next Two Years

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER and Democratic congressional leaders are making goo-goo eyes at each other in hesitant gestures toward "co-operation" in the Eighty-fourth Congress, Democratic controlled, that convenes early in January.

This foretells the difficult task faced by both sides in the forthcoming divided Government. Each recognizes that the judgment by the public on the jobs done by each in the next two years can have much bearing on who wins the 1956 presidential election. Democrats are bolstered by historical precedents that give them the edge. Usually it happens that, if the party in power loses the midterm congressional election, such as that last week, it loses the White House also two years later which, for our purposes, becomes 1956.

Rayburn

After Taft and Hoover.

That is not, however, the inevitable way. In fact, it was otherwise in the most recent case. Republicans took over Congress in the 1946 off-year congressional elections, but Democrats re-elected their President, Harry S. Truman, two years later in 1948 and also recaptured Congress.

So in this unfortunate, if unusual, experience of Republicans a few years back, Democrats have a warning. They are in the same position today. As for Republicans, they have in mind what happened twice in this century, which is that setbacks in off-year congressional elections in 1910 and 1930 were followed by their loss of the White House two years later.

President, Not Party.

When Republicans took over the Eighty-third Congress after their 1946 congressional election victory, they felt very confident of going on to win the White House as well in 1948. Their prospects appeared all the better because President Truman's stock was at the time very low with the public. But Mr. Truman was able to make an issue of their record in the Eighty-third Congress, and thus to achieve a remarkable recovery for himself and his party in 1948.

SELF-EDUCATION TRAINING IN MEDICAL SCHOOLS URGED

Since physicians must be students all their lives, they should be trained in the art of self-education while in medical school, Dr. Harold J. Jeghers, director of the department of medicine, Georgetown Medical Center, Washington, said here yesterday.

Delivering the sixth annual Vogt memorial lecture before students and faculty members of St. Louis University School of Medicine, Dr. Jeghers suggested that a good foundation for such a career of self-education would be the starting of a personal medical library by each student while still in school.

The Vogt lecture was established by Alpha Mu Chapter of Alpha Kappa Kappa medical fraternity in honor of the late Dr. William H. Vogt, professor and director of the department of obstetrics and gynecology of the St. Louis University School of Medicine.

WASHINGTON.

crats if they are to maintain their own apparent good standing with the public, demonstrated by their congressional election victory and a multitude of state and local triumphs all over the country.

In some respects their problem is more difficult than that faced by the Republicans when they took over the Eighty-third Congress midway of the first Truman Administration.

Cries of 'Obstruction.'

Calling the signals for the Democrats in Congress in this test will be Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, who once again will be speaker of the House, while his protégé, Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, will be majority leader of the Senate, and thus boss on the other side of the Capitol. If anybody can keep Democrats on an even keel it is Sam Rayburn.

Because of what is at stake in 1956, the cries of "obstruction" are bound to rise often and easily from both parties in the months ahead.

In the end, the public will be the judge of what is "obstruction" and what injury it did to their interests.

One fact must be considered in evaluating what happens in the eighty-fourth Congress. Democratic leaders made certain issues in the campaign that closed with the recent election, some here, some there, some all over.

It is their conviction that favorable public reaction to these issues contributed to their victory in House and Senate. Therefore they feel obligated to act in line with what the voters seemed to be saying with their votes.

Taxes, Jobs and Power.

Neither Sam Rayburn nor other Democratic leaders are likely to be deterred from translation of the election into legislation by cries that they are "obstructing" the President. Such cries will surely be raised, for the action will sometimes be contrary to what has been called "the Eisenhower program."

In their campaign, Democrats made an issue of the Administration tax program, which they claimed was weighted for rich and well-to-do of employment, about which they contended the Administration had been too lax; of the Administration's public power, REA and conservation policies; of its farm program; of its labor policies.

They would be expected to act to try to rectify and revise such policies and programs on the theory that election majorities demand that.

In short, to paraphrase Winston Churchill, they did not win the election to see the liquidation of programs and policies which they took 20 years to establish.

NEW ANNEX, CHAPEL TO BE DEDICATED AT SEMINARY

A new annex and chapel at the Holy Family Seminary, 2500 Ashby road, Overland, will be dedicated at 4 p.m. tomorrow with Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter of St. Louis officiating.

The seminary chapel under direction of the Rev. George A. Schroer M.S.F. will sing and the Very Rev. Peter J. Roebrooks M.S.F., rector of the seminary, will be host at a dinner following the ceremonies.

An open house for inspection of the new facilities, which cost $150,000, will be held Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. The annex, in addition to the chapel, contains three private rooms on the second floor, three parlors on the first floor and a recreation room, dining room and kitchen in the basement.

ST. LOUIS SYMPHONY CONCERT AT COLUMBIA, MO., TONIGHT

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will present a concert at 8:15 o'clock tonight at University of Missouri, Columbia, with Vladimir Golschmann conducting. The concert, an annual event, will be the symphony's first performance outside St. Louis this season.

Included in the all-orchestral program will be Francois Couperin's Overture and Allegro; Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony and overture to "Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg" by Wagner.

The orchestra's annual concert tour, lasting more than three weeks, will start Jan. 17. In the series, the symphony will play in Florida for the first time.

'SEVEN YEAR ITCH,' A LAUGH PRODUCER

Eddie Bracken's Characterization Enhances the Role He Is Playing.

By MYLES STANDISH

"The Seven Year Itch," currently Broadway's longest running show, came to the American Theater last night, with the Chicago company, for a three-week engagement and dexterously upheld its reputation as a light, nimble and skilful laugh producer. Although the last two acts don't quite hold up the pace of the first, it is chock-full of chorlines, yokes, boffs, chuckles, guffaws—whatever you care to call your laughs, and the good-sized audience seemed to enjoy itself thoroughly.

That the play succeeds so well is a triumph of craftsmanship both by playwright George Axelrod and Eddie Bracken, the star. Like Beethoven with his thematic melodies in his symphonies, Axelrod made his butter spread over a lot of bread through the art of rephrasing, development and enlargement.

His entire plot can be stated in a line or two. Richard Sherman, a nervous 39-year-old book publisher's assistant who has been faithful to his wife for the seven years of their marriage, meets a 22-year-old television actress who has moved into the apartment above when his wife is away on a summer vacation.

With much trepidation before and after, Richard persuades the young woman to spend the night with him in his apartment.

A Play on Imagination.

As it's simply as that. However, Axelrod has drolly and inventively embroidered this skimpy frame with a play upon the fervid imagination and nagging but conveniently elastic conscience of the hero. These are done in little sketches which drift in and out of his thoughts, Axelrod has used, with tongue in cheek, devices of the serious drama—the soliloquy, the evocation of unspoken thoughts such as O'Neill employed in "Strange Interlude," the film type of flashback used in "Death of a Salesman," to implement this.

The interjected scenes range from deft satire to the clever near-burlesque of a good revue skit. Richard lets his imagination wander complacently over the women who all but threw themselves at him in the past and whom he sternly—as he recalls it—shrugged off. He envisions his first meeting with the girl upstairs as a brittle bit of Noel Coward as done by the Lunts—and she turns out to be the breathless ingenue type, though maybe not as naive as she seems at first. He works himself up into a virtuous lather over the way that smirking lady's man, Tom Mackenzie is probably chasing his, Richard's, wife, on her vacation, and culls as much justification and strength from that as he does from the bourbon bottle as he faces the prospects of an amourette.

He battles briefly with his conscience over the propriety of his intentions, and as the fight hands down, he is overcome with confusion and self-reproach after a first coy rebuff, but not too much to try again.

After the night's adventure is over, he is assailed by numerous vivid terrors—of the girl being found dead in his bedroom, of being blackmailed, of the girl insisting on baring her great love to the world, of his wife shooting him. When the wench finally takes a placid departure, he sighs with relief at the prospect of the return to the friendly, stable and safe—affection of his wife.

In other words, Axelrod has given us a shrewd picture of a comic Everyman, timidly seeking dexterity and timing—his finding himself not quite up to it.

Bracken gives the hero everything the author wrote into the role and more. His characterization dexterity and timing—his little businesslike like helplessly twitching fingers—enhance the role's hilarity. His Richard ranges from the smug to the plaintive to the diffident to bravado, but it is always a funny picture of a little man in a pickle.

As the girl from upstairs, Anne Kimbell is charming, and a supple and smart actress with style. As a blunt and mundane psychiatrist who visits the hero and is used as a sounding board for some of his moral waverings, Howard Freeman presents a recognizable comic sketch. Kaye Lyder is quite acceptable as the wife.

Met's Opening on Closed Circuit Television Provides Good Show

Artistic Impact Is High Despite Novelty of Watching King-Size Figures of Singers 1000 Miles Away.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

The Metropolitan Opera Company gave the opening performance of its season last night in the presence of an audience that extended from coast to coast. The home audience witnessed the proceedings in the flesh, sitting as usual in the venerable barn at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway. The outlanders, including 1900 ticket holders at Loew's State Theater in St. Louis, were served through the closed circuit facilities of Theatre Network Television, Inc.

As this was the first time that a gala opening of the Met was literally a national occasion, the formidable presence of Science diverted some of the interest from purely artistic impact of the production. There was little reason for such a reaction. The ether has been quivering with operatic arias for 30 years or more so it's high time we were bored with miracles. Even so there was something a little magical in hearing a king-sized Rodolfo—instead of a television midget—sing "Che Gelida Manina" when he was a thousand miles away.

But novelty aside it was a good show in St. Louis and for several reasons. The scenes from "La Boheme," "The Barber of Seville" and "Aida" plus the Prologue from "Pagliacci" were sung and acted by an eminent cast for the most part and the sound reproduction—magnified though it was—had a reasonably close resemblance to one's memory of the original timbres. The volume scale was not so close. The range extended relatively from mezzo-forte to fortissimo most of the time though Roberta Peters, as Rosina in the "Barber," provided one of the exceptions.

The freshness and agility of her voice in the famous second act aria made this an outstanding performance. Miss Peters is still lacking in maturity but her natural musical resources together with her wholly engaging appearance make her future appear certain. The veterans were also impressive after one's auditory facilities had accommodated themselves to the heroic sound. Richard Tucker and Victoria de los Angeles in "La Boheme," Leonard Warren, Zinka Milanov and Jerome Hines in "Aida," Jean Madeira and Jerome Hines in the "Barber" all were obviously in top form.

The balance between orchestra and stage was not always well managed. In "La Boheme" and the "Barber" the orchestral sound was frequently remote and detached.

As for the picture on the screen it was remarkably clear most of the time for close-ups, long shots and panoramic scenes. In some instances this proved to be a dubious advantage since even in this day of figure-conscious divas there are still a few left who can create an illusion only at a respectable distance. In at least one instance, however, the camera was plainly lying. Blanche Thebom, a comely girl when seen with the naked eye, looked like a Modigliani at times. But Senor del Monaco was a handsome figure at all sizes and Roberta Peters I am sure could have stood an even greater enlargement.

One of the visual assets was a strikingly composed ballet scene with Mia Slavenska one of the few artists of the first rank who has ever appeared with the Metropolitan Opera, as the prima ballerina.

In addition to the operatic proceedings the Metropolitan management undertook to pipe a little glamour into the hinterland auditoriums by showing how the New York haute monde behaves itself between the acts. As processed by television the scene appeared little different from Saturday night at the Deep River Country Club; but great names from the ranks of Art, Commerce and Diplomacy, were being shot through the air at regular intervals by Edward Johnson, former director of the Metropolitan Opera, who roved around the Opera Club greeting friends and celebrities. And Miss Patrice Munsel officiated at an informal fashion show during one of the intervals. Altogether it was a spectacle that must have gratified the curious. The inebriated could go out for a smoke.

What the future of closed-circuit television opera may be is problematical. It will depend chiefly on the technicians I imagine. If the scale from very soft to very loud can be preserved even though the volume is stepped up, the ear can be stupefied. Then in a year or two the true colors can be transmitted. In time, no doubt, the substitute will be preferred to what goes on at the source.

The St. Louis showing of the Metropolitan Opera was sponsored by the St. Louis Opera Guild.

CALLS EAST GERMANS REPORT SAYS LATIN MOSTLY ANTI-RUSSIAN NEED U.S. AID NOW

John J. McCloy Here, Says They Would Gladly Join Western Coalition.

President Is Advised That Help Would Guard Against Reds.

The great majority of East Germans are anti-Russian and anti-Communist and would eagerly join West Germany in a Western European coalition if their Russian masters would permit it, John J. McCloy, former United States High Commissioner in Germany, said here today.

Inclusion of West Germany in the European defense community will lead ultimately to unification of all Germany, he said.

"The problem of the Saar is a minor one in comparison with the tremendous significance of the over-all European coalition," he added.

"French-German rapprochement is the key to the future of Europe and there is no place for old adamant attitudes. There is no neat solution of the Saar problem at hand, but I am convinced that it can and must be worked out because the terrific menace of the East increases in geometrical proportion as division mounts in the West."

McCloy, who became board chairman of Chase National Bank of New York upon his return from Germany late in 1952, was visiting St. Louis customers of the bank. He was the guest of John F. Lilly, board chairman of St. Louis County National Bank, at an informal dinner last night at the Racquet Club.

He said he found the St. Louis area's economy showing "good poise and balance" as a result of its wide diversification of industry.

"I found no one predicting either a boom or a depression and that is the way it should be," he said.

A Happy Result in '54.

Of the major college athletic conferences, only the Pacific Coast and Big Seven have had formal races so far—anybody wanna argue against U.C.L.A. and Oklahoma?—but league restrictions will keep the two probable champions out of the Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl.

Except for those kingly of the collegiate gridiron, however, the mighty have fallen. The mice have played while the cats have been away. And if that's what can be expected as a second season of platoonless football has served as an equalizer, here's an arousing gesundheit to the rules committee.

Even in the conferences in which ground-rules of sour grapes prevented U.C.L.A. and Oklahoma from playing bowl games, California and Oregon was expected to represent the Coast at Pasadena and Missouri or Colorado favored to be the Big Seven's biggest dwarf for the trip to Miami. But Southern California has surprised westward and Nebraska hereabouts.

That has been the pleasant pattern of unpredictability through which the have-nots have given the haves their come-uppance, though it would shed a tear if Ohio State and Michigan, two Big Ten powers, lost out to Minnesota, which hasn't sat in the Western Conference throne since 1941. The fact is, merely proving a point, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, and Michigan State were more highly regarded this fall than the Bucks, Wolves or Gophers.

Wherein the Downs Are Up and the Ups Are Down.

Ark more-dramatically, the pine knots of the Ozarks, Arkansas rugged and ready Razorbacks, have played unbeaten football in an astonishing bid for their first Southwest Conference title since 1936 after being picked to finish last. And Southern Methodist, also rugged for second division in a race expected to be won by Texas in competition with Rice and Baylor, is the Porkers' closest competition.

In another neighboring league, the meandering Missouri Valley in which Tulsa and the Oklahoma Aggies and more recently Detroit and Houston have had their way, little Wichita, manfully continuing to field the team of bigger schools, folded and fled, bowed and scraped out of gridiron competition, finally saw the dice of fortune come seven this season.

Down in Dixie, where the gridiron mercenaries are ready to pack their bags for a bowl game at the drop of a hint, Georgia Tech and Alabama, which count as lost any year they don't pick up a sizeable payday on Jan. 1, were sized up as 1-2 in the Southeastern Conference, and Mississippi was regarded a close No. 3. Yet right now it's Georgia, slightly estimated because the Bulldogs couldn't even win with Zeke Brantowski's last couple of years, that amazing has taken the top perch—without Zeke.

Denver, a Skyline Conference also-ran to Utah and Wyoming in recent years, has surged to the fore in the Rockies and other western mountain ranges.

Both Maryland of the Atlantic Coast Conference and West Virginia of the Southern are excluded from this little treatise because they don't play full states in their conference of convenience.

In the historic old Ivy League, in which Cornell was believed a certain champion again, Yale has moved out front.

Quick Kicks.

BILL WHITMORE, former St. Louisan stumbling for Rice's DICKIE MOEGLE as All-America halfback, suggests from Houston that passer caught by included with rushing and passes completed in total offense yardage. Why not? ... RALPH JORDAN, Auburn coach, junked his "X" and "Y" unit systems to upset Miami (Fla.) 14-13, and Houston's CLYDE LEE also scrapped his substituting of entire teams by quarters in favor of playing his 11 best men more in a 20-7 triumph over Tulsa.

The other football Miami (of Oxford, O.), still unbeaten, had tried 13 times since 1897 to beat a Big Ten team before taking advantage of six fumbles and three pass interceptions to upset Indiana, 6 to 0. Coach ARA PARSEGHIAN'S Redskins, Mid-American Conference champs, have had unbeaten seasons wrecked for two years by Thanksgiving opponent Cincinnati, whose 16 game winning streak and Oklahoma's are the longest in college football today.

Johnson to Wait Week to Name Pilot of Kansas City Athletics

OK of Club Transfer Is Swung By Briggs

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Arnold Johnson said today he plans to wait a week or 10 days before naming a general manager and playing manager for his new Kansas City Athletics.

Johnson, still elated with the successful completion of his purchase of the team from the Mack family and the stamp of approval by the American League yesterday, told a press conference his selection would be announced from his Chicago office.

He declined to say who was under consideration for either job but added that he believed an experienced man who knows the American League would prove the most valuable on the field. This apparently pointed to Lou Boudreau, formerly boss of the Boston Red Sox. Eddie Joost managed the Athletics in 1954.

Johnson said he personally didn't feel qualified to discuss the particular problems of the Athletics. "Unquestionably they need a lot of strengthening," he said.

Asked about reports he is ready to spend $1,000,000 to strengthen the team, Johnson replied: "Yes, that's my idea. It will take years to build a strong farm system."

Parke Carroll, business manager of the New York Yankees' Kansas City farm club in the American Association is regarded as the top candidate for the general manager job.

Stadium Issue Settled.

As for the park itself, Johnson's architects have been surveying the Kansas City situation for weeks and are ready to proceed with work on increasing the seating capacity from 17,000 to 36,000 before the 1955 season. Plans call for increasing capacity to about 45,000 by 1956.

Johnson obtained control of the Kansas City ball park in the deal in which he purchased Yankee Stadium from Yankee owners Del Webb and Dan Topping for $6,500,000 Dec. 17. He then made arrangements to sell the park to the city of Kansas City and lease it back for five years. The city has guaranteed 1,000,000 paid attendance per year for three years or Johnson can move his franchise somewhere else.

As part of the $3,500,000 deal for the Athletics, Johnson agreed to sell his interest in the Yankee Stadium, home of the Yankees, within 90 days. He said he expected no difficulty disposing of his shares in the Arnold Johnson Corporation which currently leases the stadium to the Yankees.

Under terms of the deal, Johnson will pay $450,000 each to Roy and Earle Mack as soon as they can set up a meeting for the 163 shares each owns. He already has paid Connie Mack $804,000 for his 302 shares. Both Roy and Earle will have three-year contracts with the new organization.

In addition, Johnson must pick up a $1,200,000 mortgage held by the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. and must also pay off debts estimated by him at $800,000. He will, however, get back $1,650,000 by the sale of Connie Mack Stadium to President Bob Carpenter of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Switch in Briggs' Stand.

"I am the happiest man in the world," Johnson said on learning that the American League had unanimously approved the sale of the stock to him and that six of the eight owners had approved the transfer. "It was toughest fight I have had in my life."

White Elephant, Rosy Future?

Some cloudiness has developed in Saskatchewan and western Manitoba, but elsewhere over north-central sections skies are clear to partly cloudy. Temperatures range from the middle 20s in northern Minnesota to the low and middle 30s in the Dakotas and the Canadian provinces and the upper 30s in eastern South Dakota and southeastern Minnesota. There has been no precipitation the last 24 hours.

Cloudiness will increase in the North-Central States this afternoon and tonight, with mostly cloudy skies and a likelihood of showers tomorrow. Temperature changes will be relatively unimportant, with low temperatures tomorrow morning ranging from 25 to 35 in the Dakotas and from near 30 to the upper 30s in Minnesota.

(Published by U.S. Weather Bureau) Shooting hours for Wednesday: 6:07 a.m. to 3:53 p.m.

Griffith had opposed the transfer because it meant that Baltimore would be shifted from a "western" team to an "eastern" team and thus offer competition to his Senators, both at the gate and for television money.

"I voted against it," he said after the ballot, "but I congratulated the winner."

The revised league make-up puts Kansas City in the western half with Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit, and Baltimore with New York, Boston and Washington in the eastern half. A new schedule will be distributed to the clubs within a week by league President Will Harridge.

The final chapter in the deal that has forced the league to hold four special meetings found both Earle Mack and his brother Roy, present. Their father, 92-year-old Connie, was too sick to attend. He had been disappointed by the league's failure to approve an eight-man Philadelphia syndicate Oct. 28.

The franchise shift, third in the last 20 months, is expected to create quite a problem in several minor league towns. The Yankees are asking no compensation for their Kansas City franchise but Johnson must satisfy the American Association for the loss of one of its best cities.

A seven-man board of arbitration will be set up to determine the damages.

K.C. Celebrates Third Time; Citizens Who Pledged to Buy Tickets Promised First Choice

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 9 (UP)—Jubilant Kansas Citizens could think of little but baseball today after learning the Philadelphia Athletics would be moved to the city next season.

Baseball was the chief topic of conversation. News that the Athletics were coming to Kansas City was known to almost everyone.

Housewives talked about it across the back fences. City officials discussed it. A bartender who didn't know much about the transfer had little to talk about.

Kansas City's once-blasted dream of having a major league baseball team became a reality yesterday. The news spread through the twin cities of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., like a prairie fire.

"It is really true we've got the Athletics!" everyone asked. Some were skeptical. The city had celebrated twice previously. Fans rejoiced Oct. 12 when the American League owners approved a proposal of Arnold Johnson of Chicago to shift the Athletics from Philadelphia to Kansas City. This elation turned to gloom later when a Philadelphia group made an offer and it looked as if the club would stay in the East. Then Johnson actually purchased the Mack family's stock last Thursday, and there was another enthusiastic outburst.

Yesterday got 'em this time. The move was approved by the American League clubowners, and this time joy was unbounded.

"We've got 'em this time," the shouts went.

And the city celebrated. At some bars, the drinks were on the house. Celebrants were pretty certain they wouldn't wake up with a baseball hangover like the one that followed the earlier celebration.

For all news media, the transfer of the A's to Kansas City was one of the biggest, if not the biggest, story of the year. Radio and television stations were swamped with calls when the news broke about 3 p.m. yesterday.

It was the fifth perfect game for Patterson in league play and he has rolled 22 games of 300 in other bowling contests.

Don Carter, national match game champion, making his first appearance in the lineup since a recent operation, showed that he has recovered. Don had 659. Ray Bluth, runner up to Bill Welu in the City match game tournament, had 650. Welu 667 and Don McClaren, who, with Welu, holds the national doubles championship, was low with 571.

The Buds had a 3-game total of 3321 and a single high of 1173.

Blues May Go To Columbus In Realignment

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Transfer of the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City will mean the relocation of at least one minor league club and the possible reduction in size of the Class C Western Association.

Under baseball rules the Kansas City Blues of the American Association, owned by the New York Yankees, will have first call on any other minor league city.

Although owners Dan Topping and Del Webb of the Yankees have made no announcements regarding their Kansas City club, Denver is reported to be first in line. Denver is a member of the Class A Western League.

There also is a possibility the Yankees will enter into an agreement with the St. Louis Cardinals in which the Cards would move their Columbus, O., American Association franchise to Omaha—another Western League city—and the Yankees shift the Blues to Columbus.

President Ed Doherty of the American Association said in Louisville, The Association will meet in Chicago Monday or Tuesday to select a successor club to Kansas City.

Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem., Colorado), president of the Western League and newly elected Governor of his state, said in Washington his league is going ahead with plans to operate in 1955 as usual with the expectation that Denver and Omaha will remain.

But should either one or both be taken over by major league clubs, the league will have to look elsewhere.

E. R. (Salty) Saltwell, executive secretary of the league, said in Des Moines last night that Cedar Rapids, Ia., or Albuquerque, N.M., were possible sites.

The league also might turn to the Western Association to draft a city or two.

The most attractive cities in the Western Association from a population standpoint are Topeka, Kan., and St. Joseph, Mo. But both are within striking distance of Kansas City. St. Joe is only 52 miles away.

President George Barr of the Class C circuit said, however, the transfer of the Athletics should stimulate interest in his league.

"It may hurt St. Joseph," he said, "and the league may have trouble lining up eight teams and will have to go with six."

The Yankees have waived any compensation for moving the Athletics into their minor league territory but the American Association will need to be reimbursed as will other minor leagues and cities as the shifts continue down through the lower classifications.

Many persons had pledged to buy tickets before the deal was closed and Johnson said they would "get first choice" when tickets actually are available. When Kansas City was to get the A's earlier, thousands pledged to purchase tickets to prove the city would support a major league baseball.

Left up in the air by the acquisition of the Kansas City Athletics was the fate of the Class AAA Kansas City Blues. The club, owned by the New York Yankees, will have to move.

City Manager L.P. Cookingham said: "I'll say one more time this is a great thing for Kansas City. I predict we'll break some sort of attendance record right off the bat."

Cookingham said a considerable amount of work would have to be done in a short time in preparing for the Athletics' arrival.

"There are details to be worked out concerning the city's purchase of the stadium from Arnold Johnson and the leasing of the stadium to Johnson. We've got to get busy in a hurry."

John Zelinski came through with 769 total, including high single of 277, to take the individual scoring honors in the preceding B-M Junior Classic League. Zelinski had a 702 series in the Metropolitan, too.

Zelinski's 769 total helped the Barrett-Hericks roll team scores of 1191 and 3374.

Vern Schaefer, rolling in the Community Business Men's League, tallied 285 high single and 690 series last night at Bowl-Rite Lanes.

Wilkinson Is in Favor of Abiding By Bowl Rule

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 9 (UP)—Coach Bud Wilkinson, fearing a late-season football defeat at the hands of either Missouri or Nebraska, said yesterday he favors strict compliance with the Big Seven rule which would prevent Oklahoma from playing a post-season game.

Wilkinson also said he would not favor a change in Big Seven rules which would enable Oklahoma to eliminate one conference foe each season in favor of a match with a potentially tougher opponent.

The two matters came up during Wilkinson's appearance before the Oklahoma City Quarterback club. The crowd at the regular Monday luncheon was small. When those attending were asked why, one fan replied:

"Maybe it's because Oklahoma's schedule is too easy and because Oklahoma can't go to a bowl regardless of how well it does."

Wilkinson described Missouri and Nebraska, who come to Norman this week and next for final Big Seven tests against the Sooners, as "the best teams we have had to play since Texas."

If Oklahoma defeats Missouri it is a cinch for a tie for the championship—for the ninth straight year the team would be atop the league.

Kansas City Last in Major League in 1886, Went Broke in Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Kansas City had a short and ill-starred stay in the big leagues once before.

The Kansas City club was a member of the National League in 1886 when it replaced Providence. The team finished seventh in the eight-team league with a 30-91 record and the club went bankrupt. Pittsburgh replaced Kansas City the following year.

The city also had a representative in the American League in 1900, but that was one year before the A.L. became a major league.

Scarcely a Murmur of Regret in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9 (AP) The era of American League baseball in Philadelphia ended yesterday with scarcely a murmur from the city's baseball fans.

Though once a strong American League city, the rise of the National League's Philadelphia Phillies to a prominent position, plus the Athletic's lackluster performance of the past season left the fans indifferent to the fate of the once proud American leaguers.

Moreover, yesterday's developments had been anticipated after the failure of efforts by an eight-man syndicate to buy the club and keep it here.

Missouri U. Star Ray Detring Quitting Football, He Notifies Faurot

At Home To Help Dad Farm

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 9 — Ray Detring, Missouri's raw-boned and rugged left halfback, has decided to quit football. Coach Don Faurot learned this morning in a telephone conversation with the player.

Faurot called Detring at Farmington, Mo., where the player had returned home with his father after Saturday's game here with Colorado.

Detring did not report at practice yesterday, and Faurot made his telephone call this morning to determine the athlete's plans. The coach said Detring told him his decision to stay at home was based on three things: Detring's wife is expecting a baby, the work on his father's farm is heavy, and he has not been happy about the progress of his school work.

Team Will Miss Him. "He is a fine boy, popular with the team and popular with the coaches," said Faurot. "He's one of our big backs, one of our good backs, and we will miss him."

The Tigers won't wait long to miss him. They play Oklahoma at Norman this Saturday.

Detring has started every game this season, except the opening one. He was undisciplined last year about continuing in school.

45.1 Average on Punts. Not the least of Detring's abilities that will be missed is his punting. He has averaged 45.1 yards per kick and in Saturday's 19-19 game with Colorado two punts he made were cited by Faurot as particularly valuable.

A junior, Detring took his strong 190 pounds to the full-back position earlier this year and filled in for injured Bob Bauman. When Bauman returned, Detring went back to left halfback.

As a ball-carrier, Detring ranked second on the Missouri team. In 44 carries, he has gained 137 yards. Only Bauman is ahead of him.

Jim Hunter, sophomore from Webb City, will take Detring's place, Faurot said. Hunter has shown good ability as a runner.

IOWA AND NAVY MOVE TO TOP 10

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (UP)—U.C.L.A. pulled further away from Ohio State and Oklahoma today in the three-team race for the National College football championship, while Iowa and Navy advanced among this week's top 10 in the United Press ratings.

U.C.L.A. also retained its top ranking in the Associated Press weekly poll and Iowa and Navy likewise climbed into the top 10 of that ranking.

The powerful Bruins from the Pacific Coast Conference, who have averaged nearly 42 points a game in scoring eight straight victories, were the first-place choice of 26 coaches on the 35-man United Press rating board.

U.C.L.A.'s point-total of 338 was only 12 short of a perfect score and the highest compiled by any team this season.

That support widened U.C.L.A.'s margin from 17 to 28 points over Ohio State and from 28 to 56 points over Oklahoma.

Paid Penalty and Flew Coop

By Dukes Duford and Amadee

Two successive penalties left Webster Groves with a first-and-30 situation, 47 yards from University City's goal line, but the Statesmen recovered it all, and more, in the first quarter. A touchdown pass sprang them from the penalty area into an eventual 38-7 victory Saturday. The big move went like this: Quarterback GLEN ST. PIERRE (1) took the ball from Center BOB COOPER (7), faked a handoff to Fullback CHARLIE JAMES (3), and tossed the ball back to Left Halfback HANK KUHLMANN (4). Kuhlmann took a few steps to his right, retreating, while Left End BLAINE LINK (5) ran downfield, faked to his left and then cut to his right, freeing himself of the defensive halfback, and caught Kuhlmann's high pass at the 10-yard line. Link went on to score the game's first touchdown.

Nov. 9 (UP) CORAL GABLES, Fla. — TROPICAL PARK announces that it's perfectly safe for turf fans to keep their noses buried in their racing forms.

Track Supt. Henry Collins said his crew spent the past few days atop a 60-foot mobile platform, picking the fall crop of hard-shelled coconuts.

"We do it every year," Collins said. "It saves the heads of a large number of our patrons."

Tropical Park opens its 43-day meeting Nov. 27.

Webster's Path to Its First Unbeaten Season Under Moss

By Harold Tuthill

Undeclared Webster Groves was not so sure it deserved the No. 1 rating in the state until after it defeated University City. The 33-7 score makes it pretty certain the Statesmen will hold their top position.

Webster coach Ray Moss said as the latest step in the resurrection of the old Southwestern Illinois Conference. In addition to East St. Louis, the football playing schools will be Alton, Belleville, Collinsville and Granite City. They may be known as the "Big Five."

Seven schools will compete in basketball. Edwardsville's Joe Lucio is in charge of that committee. In addition to Edwardsville and the football-playing schools, Wood River will compete in basketball.

Anybody want a game with C.B.C. Thanksgiving day? Babe Murphy, Cadet coach, said the unbeaten but tied C.B.C. team would be available for a Turkey day attraction.

Speaking of wanting games, East St. Louis has football dates, Sept. 23 and Sept. 30 next year. It would like to fill . . . The Orange and Blue also will renew its grid rivalry with Collinsville in 1955.

W. O. Sanders, Sumner coach, said he expected Freddy Ware, the speed merchant, and Lionel Harper, regular tackle, to be ready when the Bulldogs oppose Washington Tech Thursday afternoon at the stadium.

A week later Sumner will oppose St. Louis U. High.

Webster Groves Douglass, behind at the half, 20-0, bowed, 34-0, to Evansville (Ind.) Lincoln there Saturday night. . . . Halfback Don Cheaney scored three touchdowns and figured in the other two against Douglass.

Only Maplewood Friday and Kirkwood Thanksgiving block Webster's path to an undefeated season and the championship of the Big Six. Moss hopes to have his two cripples, Fletcher Bingham and Gil Detjen, in shape for the last two games.

Detjen, injured in the Quincy game, could have played against U. City, but Moss kept his guard on the bench. Bingham, letterman tackle, re-injured his knee in the game with the Tribe of Stub Muhl.

Wirt Downing, whose 29 consecutive victories, stamps him as the No. 1 prep coach in Illinois and his East St. Louis team as tops in the state, maintains he has a weak backfield.

"I'm short of good backs," the Flyer coach said, of a team which has scored two or more touchdowns in eight games against top flight opponents.

"Right now I'm considering using a light sophomore, Ronnie Smith, as our regular fullback in the last three games with Alton, Centralia and Belleville."

Smith, who weighs only 140, is rated by Downing as the fastest boy on the squad.

What Downing didn't mention was that he has probably the sharpest T quarterback in the St. Louis district in Don Mason.

Castellani May Be Next for Unbeaten Fullmer

Zulueta Is Victim Of Upset

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Unbeaten Gene (Cyclone) Fullmer, a good, tough and aggressive middleweight had an invitation to come back to New York anytime after his rousing eastern television debut against Jackie La Bua.

The strong-legged, 23-year-old middleweight from West Jordan, Utah, made his perfect record 25-0 last night by drubbing the New York prospect at Eastern Parkway Arena for a lopsided 10-round decision.

As a result, Matchmaker Teddy Brenner signed the Rocky Mountain copper miner for a Dec. 20 tilt with Rocky Castellani, fourth ranking 160-pound contender.

"If Castellani doesn't want to take on the kid—but I think he will—we'll get Paddy Young or some other top middleweight," said Brenner. "This kid is the best westerner to come here since we brought Bobo Olson in from the coast for his Eastern debut."

All the Same. "Castellani, Olson, or anyone," said the calm victor. "It's all the same to me. All I want to know did the fans like it? That's what I wanted most. It was my first time on television."

He was assured that he did fine. Fullmer's face lit up. "I could have done better," he said. "I wasn't as sharp as I've been before. But I'm glad the fans liked it."

The only thing the Korean war vet didn't do was floor or knockout the strong-jawed, 22-year-old New Yorker. Jackie, however, is a tough foe to down. He has been stopped only once, by Billy McNece on cuts on July 5. La Bua's record is 23-4.

It was only the fourth time Fullmer, a member of a fighting family, had gone 10 rounds. He seldom has to go the limit. He has 19 kayos to his credit, 12 of them in one round. Despite his impressive kayo record Gene was an 8-5 underdog. He was outweighted 158 1/4 to 154 1/4.

"He's rough and tough and a real comer," said La Bua, who claimed he couldn't do much after being hit on the right ear in the first round. Fullmer showed a full repertoire of punches, and was especially effective with a short right to the side.

All three officials voted for Fullmer: Referee George Walsh 8-1-1; Judge Bert Grant 7-2-1, and Judge Joe Agnello 8-2-0.

Screams and Hooters. In the other TV fight of the night at St. Nicholas Arena, Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., scored a 10-round upset and disputed decision over Orlando Zulueta, fifth ranking lightweight from Cuba. All six writers at the ringside thought the Cuban, a 5-1 favorite, won it handily. Zulueta weighed 136, Lane 137.

The experienced Zulueta was calling his shots in the last three rounds against his tiring young rival, who was not used to going 10 rounds.

Referee Barney Felix (5-4-1) and Judge Joe Eppy (5-5 rounds 7-6 on points) voted for Lane. Judge Harold Barnes scored for Zulueta 7-3. The AP card had Zulueta in front 7-2-1.

When he heard the decision, Hymie (The Mink) Wallman, Zulueta's manager, was speechless for one of the few times in his life. After that his screams of protests went on and on.

Please Send Formula.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 9 (UP)—Kentucky Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby received a rather wistful telegram of congratulations yesterday from his old friend, Paul Bryant, coach of the Texas A. & M. football team. Bryant, who until this season coached at Kentucky, noted the election victory score by Kentucky Democrats last Tuesday and sent this message to Gov. Wetherby:

"Heartily congratulations on your overwhelming victory. Please send formula. Regards, Paul Bryant."

Bryant's Aggie team has won only one game all season.

With Ice Chips at Hand, Welu Keeps His Bowling Real Cool

By John J. Archibald

There are quite a few bowlers who are said to have ice water in their veins, but the new city champion, Billy Welu, finds that he does his best with an "ice water thumb."

Sunday morning, in the lull between 16-game sessions of the match game finals, Billy said he soaked his thumb in a glass of chipped ice for a couple of hours, in order to reduce the swelling that usually occurs when he is doing a lot of bowling. One might figure this would lead to a numb thumb, but not so.

"Oh, it's dead for a few minutes afterward," said Welu. "but I wrap it in a towel until I'm ready to roll and it's okay. If I don't ice it up, it gets so big that the ball starts hanging, instead of sliding off smoothly. Even with an ice treatment, it started doing that in the final round against Ray Bluth—I had five splits and a 144 in the second game. Talcum powder helped some then, however."

Keeping the various fingers in shape is a problem to almost all tournament bowlers, and it is one of the many things a man must learn as he prepares to make the sport a career. Billy has learned a lot in his 22 years. Who taught him? Like his Budweiser teammate and two-time national match game champion, Don Carter, he says that he learned much by himself.

Practice Does It. "The big part of the job is practice," Billy said. "I first picked up a bowling ball when I was 14, and from that time on I was on the alleys as often as I could afford it."

"I had a paper route in my home town of Houston, and as soon as I'd get a dollar together I'd go roll three games," Welu continued. "Later on I set pins and worked at other jobs in bowling alleys, and after the place closed about 2 a.m. or so, I'd put in a couple of hours practice. One night I'd throw at nothing but No. 10 pins, and other times I'd work on my approach, or some other phase of the game."

He had teachers to help him with the fine points, of course. Lowell Jackson, the former St. Louisan, was one. Arnold Pergande, one of the best bowlers Houston has produced, was another. Billy also was anxious to give credit to the manager of Houston's Recreation Lanes, Fred Magee, and Joe Carroll of the Phillips Lanes, who he says were usually considerate of him as an employee and student of the game, in addition to coaching him.

Welu rolled in a high school league in Houston, and won the city championship for teen-agers bowlers. Billy, by the way, was somewhat surprised that St. Louis does not have such a tourney in order to stimulate interest among the next generation of ten-pinner.

When Billy began rolling in a non-school league, he had to withdraw from all high school sports, for Texas law states that

Carpenter Needs Park 'Like Hole in Head'

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Robert R. M. Carpenter Jr. of the Philadelphia Phillies said last night he's willing to buy Connie Mack stadium from Arnold Johnson, but commented he needs it "as much as we need a hole in the head."

Johnson's plans to move the Amercan League Athletics to Kansas City—approved today by league owners in New York—call for selling the ball park here to the Phillies for a reported $1,600,000.

"We need the ball park as much as we need a hole in the head," Carpenter told newsmen. "But we can't do anything else but buy from Arnold Johnson if we are to remain in Philadelphia and we intend to do that."

"We will be under much more expense as owners rather than tenants," the Phillies owner said. "We will have to devise other ways of making up the expense."

The Phillies paid only 10 cents per admission to the Athletics as rental.

Walsh Moves Up at Illinois, Siegert Out

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 9 (UP)—

Illinois tackle Rudy Siegert will be unable to play in the final two games against Wisconsin and Northwestern due to a knee injury suffered Saturday. It was announced yesterday.

Coach Ray Eliot said guard Bucky Tate would be moved to right tackle to replace Siegert and George Walsh, a junior reserve, would replace Tate.

There was some hope that Halfback J. C. Caroline would be able to play this week. He played two minutes against Michigan Saturday before his injured shoulder forced him out.

Ameche to Be Ready.

MADISON, W. Va., Nov. 9 (UP)—

Only six members of Wisconsin's first and second football squads turned out for practice yesterday although several of the others reported to the training room for treatment of minor injuries.

Among those receiving treatment for various aches and pains suffered in the Northwestern game Saturday were Fullback Alan Ameche, Center Gary Messner and End Roy Locklin. All are expected to be ready for full-time duty against Illinois next weekend.

Hadley and St. Peter's Play Elsberry Opener

HADLEY High School will play

St. Peter's of St. Charles at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the opening game of the Elsberry Invitational Basketball tournament. Valley Park will meet Troy in the second game.

Other first-round pairings are Sullivan versus Francis-Howell, and Elsberry versus Clarksville. Sullivan is defending champion in the eight-team tournament.

PROFIT-TAKING CHIPS AWAY AT STOCK BOOM

Trade in 1261 Individual Issues Is Greatest on Record.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—The stock market made a limited advance today with profit-taking chipping away at the post-election boom.

This is the fifth advance in six sessions. Gains to around two points weren't too numerous in key areas. Losses extended to between one and two points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks added 30 cents at $140.60, the second straight new high mark.

The industrial component of the average advanced 80 cents to a new high of $183.40, the railroads declined 20 cents, and the utilities were up 10 cents.

There were 1261 individual issues traded—the greatest number on record. The previous record was June 27, 1950, when 1260 issues were traded.

There were 592 advancing and 403 declining stocks with 136 new highs and no new lows for the year, registered.

Volume in the first hour was extremely heavy, but the pace slackened somewhat after that. It came to an aggregate 3,240,000 shares as compared with 3,100,000 shares traded yesterday.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks were 71.07 up 1.61 points at the close, a new high and less than 11 points under the record high. The 20 railroads were off 14 to 124.01 and the 15 utilities 58.96 up 1.00.

Among higher stocks were Republic Steel, General Motors, Goodrich, Caterpillar Tractor, United Aircraft, American Woolen, Southern Railway, Standard Oil (N. J.), Johns-Manville, and Kaiser Aluminum.

McGraw Electric was down after directors proposed a two-for-one split and raised the dividend.

International Paper declined followed declaration of a 5 percent stock dividend as compared with 10 percent a year ago.

Ex-Cello fell away in apparent disappointment over a 50-cent extra.

Greatest boost to total volume came in the first hour. Shortly after the opening, the rush of orders was so intense that the ticker fell behind in reporting firm transactions by as much as three minutes. Only a few times this year has the jam in business been more pronounced.

The first forward rush played favorites. Almost all stocks had a hand in the rise.

There were some sharp gains including Reynolds Metals up between 3 and 4 points, Ingersoll Rand up around 4 and 5, and U.S. Gypsum up 4 points.

Tobacco shares were depressed from the start on the heels of a new discussion of smoking and cancer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold Tuesday for $75,000, the highest price in eight years. Earlier, two seats were sold—one for $75,000 and one later for $70,000, the latest transfer equals the $75,000 sale of Aug. 22, 1946. A seat sold at $77,000 on Aug. 14, 1946.

Standard Oil Co. of Ohio reported profits for nine months ended Sept. 30 declined to $12,854,454, equal to $2.93 a common share from $14.18, 17¢ or $3.38 a share in like 1953 period.

McGraw Electric Co. declared an extra dividend of $1 and a common stock, payable Dec. 10 to record Nov. 24. Directors also approved a proposal to split outstanding stock on a two-for-one basis.

Commercial and industrial failures in week ended Nov. 4 declined to 204 from 223 in preceding week, Dun & Bradstreet said. This compared with 207 in like week a year ago. Failures with liabilities of $5000 or more totaled 176, compared with 193 in previous week and 181 a year ago.

Western Auto Supply (Missouri) reported October sales of $14,862,000 compared with $15,215,000 for October, 1953, a decrease of 8.9 percent. Sales for 10 months were $134,375,000, against $148,767,000, for like 1953 period, a decrease of 9.7 percent.

F. W. Woolworth Co. sales for 10 months of 1954 amounted to $351,512,354, a decrease of one-tenth of one percent from $352,111,541 in like period a year ago. For October, sales totaled $30,287,434 against $31,978,847 in October last year, a decline of 5.3 percent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Ex-Cell-O Corp. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on common stock, payable Dec. 10 to holders of record for the year ended Nov. 30 to $2.50, a 25 percent increase over $2 in previous year.

BACKWARD AREAS REDEVELOPMENT PLAN EXPLAINED

vately, agree with this estimate. In many areas population increases are more than absorbing developmental efforts, and the people's standard of living is slipping backward. It is sheer desperation that is driving many of these countries to Communism—which proposes to achieve development by brute force.

Our present efforts—largely confined to the remnants of Point IV technical training—have been compared to a bridge which extends half-way across the river. Such a bridge is not very useful.

But neither will the new plan they have worked out be successful, the M.I.T. experts believe, unless it is accompanied by a generally more enlightened foreign economic policy—beginning with the measures proposed in the Randall Commission report, shelved by the last Congress. Without a freer world trade, a stabilization of raw materials and foodstuffs prices, and other measures, including efforts to encourage private investments abroad, they believe no plan can achieve the desired result—the development of the underdeveloped areas of the world so that the one billion human beings in it will end up tipping the balance for the free, non-Communist world—to the final frustration of Communist ambitions for world domination.

All-Out Effort Needed.
If the total, and adequate, effort is made, there is evidence that the final victory of the free, non-Communist world may come more rapidly than is generally believed possible. Many of the underdeveloped countries tend to be "neutralist" between the United States and its allies, and world Communism, today. The underdeveloped countries are preoccupied with their pressing internal problems, unable to see that the free world has a program for development comparable to the promises of the Communist world.

If such a free world program is adopted, and vigorously implemented under United States leadership, the non-Communist underdeveloped areas should fairly quickly outstrip in development the great Communist showpiece, Red China, some of the M.I.T. experts believe. W. W. Rostow, of the M.I.T. Center, author—with others at the Cen-

SURPRISE ALERT TESTS CIVILIAN DEFENSE IN EAST

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP)—A surprise test air alert—the first on a region-wide basis since the dim-out days of World War II—summoned civil defense officials to their posts throughout the middle Atlantic seaboard area last night.

The Eastern Air Defense Command released the warning—that enemy aircraft had been tracked on an approach to the East coast.

Six states and the District of Columbia were involved. The general public participated in Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia and Baltimore and five surrounding counties in Maryland. The rest of Maryland was not affected.

The purpose of the drill—labeled operation "Quick Kick"—was to test the region's communications setup and alerting procedure.

BURMA TO JOIN THAILAND IN ANTI-GUERRILLA DRIVE

BANGKOK, Nov. 9 (AP)—Burma's ambassador U Fe Kin said yesterday his country would cooperate with Thailand in a campaign to arrest, intern and ultimately evacuate to Formosa 6000 Chinese Nationalist guerrilla troops still in Burma.

He said his government hoped Nationalist authorities on Formosa would agree to accept the irregulars and that they would surrender voluntarily.

ter-of a new book, "The Prospects for Communist China," serious economic trouble, as a result of its attempt to apply a rigid Communist formula to a situation in which that formula is far from appropriate.

Communism is winning the race for the loyalties of the one billion human beings in the underdeveloped areas only because it is the only serious runner in the race, Rostow contends. The free, non-Communist world has all the best resources, he believes—the machines, the techniques and the ideas—if it also can muster the will to win.

JUDGE HARLAN IS GRANDSON OF 'GREAT DISSENTER'

scholars are reputed to be—and that he had been back to England only once. This was during World War II, when, as a colonel in the Eighth Air Force he was in charge of the operations research section. He had joined the War Department in 1942 as the civilian head of the operations analysis section of the Air Corps and later was commissioned a lieutenant colonel. As a colonel he served with the Strategic Air Forces in Europe and was awarded the Legion of Merit and the French and Belgian Croix de Guerres with palms.

Judge Harlan was born in Chicago in 1899, the son of John Maynard Harlan, an attorney who unsuccessfully ran for Mayor on a reform ticket. He was named for his grandfather, who had been named after the second chief justice. The family was not related to the Marshalls.

In 1928 he married Miss Ethel Andrews, and they have one daughter, Mrs. Wellington A. Newcomb, and a granddaughter. The Harlans have a town residence on East Fifty-sixth street in New York and a country place at Weston, Conn., where they belong to the county hunt.

MARINE LOSES 1776 3-CORNERED HAT, FACES 'K.P.' TOUR

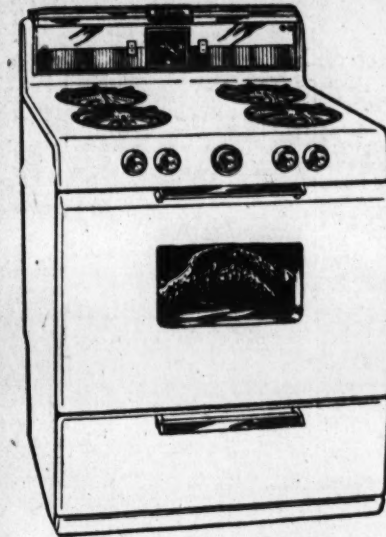

Tech Sgt. Von D. Michael of the Marine Recruiting Service here found himself facing a tour of "K.P." yesterday when he couldn't produce the three-cornered hat of a 1776 Marine uniform he wore to the service's 179th birthday celebration Saturday night.

Michael said he had the hat on and off during the official celebration at Hotel Jefferson, but it was missing when it came time to go home. An attempt to replace the hat was unsuccessful yesterday after a tour of costume shops. The historical uniform is the property of the Marine Corps.

The Marine's commanding officer, Maj. John J. Jarvis Jr., assessed the "K.P." which in the Federal Building office consists of washing coffee cups, when Michael showed up without the hat.

The Gobel Humor Is Bright and Original

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. WELL, somebody in the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was out in Denver goofed, and the first thing we knew, there was a picture of Sherman Billingsley sitting down at a Stork Club table. But the voice was not Billingsley's; it was George Gobel's. Gobel was talking about Vasco da Gama "who was born in 1469—and how many people can you say that about?" and this little spiel was so monstrously irrelevant that I thought he was satirizing Billingsley whose own record for irrelevance is mighty high. But, no such luck. It was all an accident. The Gobel Show (KSD-TV, 9 p.m. CST Saturdays) comes from Hollywood over NBC and the Billingsley show from New York over ABC. ABC's feed of Billingsley got as far west as Denver when someone pushed the wrong button and sent the video back to New York on NBC. There hasn't been such a hilarious mixup since a TV station in a one-station town broadcast the video from one football game and the sound from another one.

WELL, I SUPPOSE that was as good an introduction as any to the Gobel humor, if you had never been exposed to it before. Presently, Gobel's own round bland face swam into view. He was talking about his wife Alice who swam into view soon, too. "How are the children?" inquired Gobel. "Pretty dull," said Alice. "Gregg cut his finger." "What happened?" "It bled."

THE GOBEL HUMOR is hard to pin down. It's a sly, impish humor and it sneaks up on you in unexpected ways. He is essentially a monologist, one of the best in the business, and he was talking about the vagaries of Hollywood stars. "Some of them are pretty eccentric. I know one star who has four Cadillacs—one for each direction. . . . Divorce isn't any more hasty here—just more frequent. Some divorces here start over the silliest things—like marriage. But believe me, married people aren't any more miserable here than anywhere else." The monologues start slowly and Gobel is masterful at building them and building them—until presently you're falling off your chair. Wisely, Gobel isn't depending entirely on his own inventiveness, which is considerable, but also has a crack-writing team composed of Hal Kanter, Jimmy Allred, Jack Douglas and Harry Winkler. No doubt about it—the Gobel show is one of the brightest things to come along this season, the most original and the most consistent.

DIRECTLY PRECEDING the Gobel show on NBC every other Saturday is another whizbang of a show—some of the time. This is 29-year-old Donald O'Connor's half hour variety show "Here Comes Donald." O'Connor is one of the greatest all-around talents in show business—he can sing, dance, clown, act, anything—and when his writer-director Sidney Miller is hot, the show's very, very good. When he isn't, it isn't.

Miller, incidentally, is the guy who plays O'Connor's partner in songwriting and their last fling at this was composing the music and lyrics for what they described as a space fiction musical. And very funny, too. Then O'Connor went on to do a satiric bit on all the old silent pictures you ever saw—"The Mountie," "The Shiek," "The Dance Man." Well, it's been done before but never much better than this. On the weeks that young Donald isn't there, the veteran Jimmy Durante takes over, and he's pretty wonderful, too.

DIRECTLY PRECEDING the O'Connor-Durante frolic is Imogene Coca's new half-hour show. It should have been an impressive lineup—Coca, O'Connor-Durante and Gobel—but the Coca show has been a fairly bitter disappointment so far. Miss Coca still possesses one of the freshest, most charming comedy talents on television, but most of the things she has been required to do have been tasteless and sometimes downright silly.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

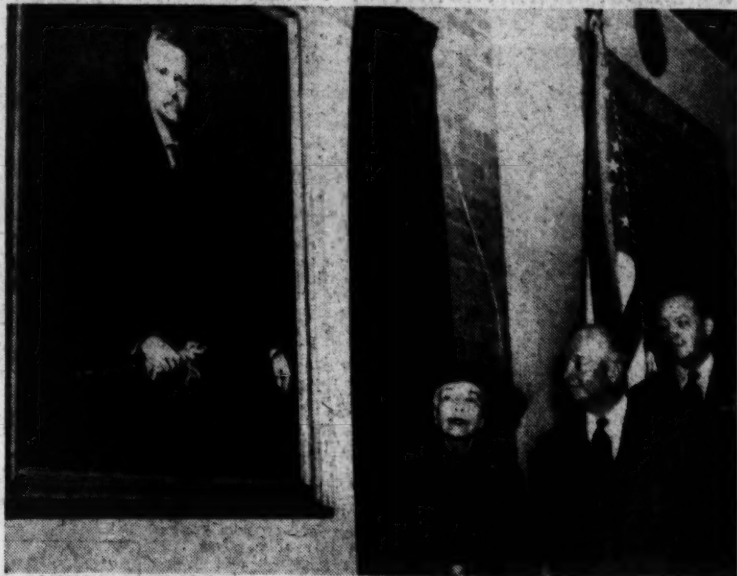

IN THE musical play, "By the Beautiful Sea," Shirley Booth makes a balloon ascension from Steeplechase park in Coney Island and parachutes back to terra firma. The incident has no basis in actual fact. Tilyou, who ran Steeplechase park in those good old days, would never have paid his good money for a spectacle that could be seen just as well by gawkers outside the park as ticket holders within. Frank Farrell recalls the day Tilyou hired March King John Philip Sousa and his band for the then-unheard-of fee of $1000 a day. The experiment was a flop—because the music could be heard perfectly well on the beach and boardwalk outside. So Tilyou signed up the Floradora Sextette as a spicy co-attraction. No one could get a satisfactory eyeful of those curves from out in the wide blue yonder. The turnstiles at Steeplechase park were soon ringing out a merry tune, and peace and prosperity reigned once more in Coney Island.

The Dean Speaks Up
A Haunting Memory
By Adele Starbird

TODAY I am moved to write about Frances, who haunts me from time to time. I met her when I went to New York to study at Columbia University; she was living in the co-operative apartment to which I was sent by Raymond Weeks, head of the French department. "You will like it at Marthe's," he said.

DEAN STARBIRD

It was delightful. We had an excellent cook, and shared expenses, taking turns at marketing and bookkeeping. The talk was light and lively and there was much laughter.

Frances was different from the others, stodgy and prosaic. She had lived there the longest, she had the best room and sat at the foot of the table opposite Marthe, the hostess. As head of the French department in a New York high school she had a stupendous salary which was well-earned, for her students always made the highest grades in the dreaded Regents' examinations. We had a profound respect for her competence.

Her body was thick rather than fat, her legs heavy and muscular; she wore oxfords and sensible clothes of good quality and no style. She took a solemn interest in nutrition; buying, preparing and eating food absorbed her attention. She badgered the cook constantly to know whether the cake had been baked in our kitchen, whether the soup was canned. I used to watch her conscientiously chewing her food at the foot of the table, and wonder if she ever had any gluttonous pleasure in eating.

FRANCES SPENT an occasional weekend in Westchester county with a married couple, the Duvals, or had them as her guests for dinner at the apartment. Mr. Duval had ulcers, money and a cruel wit that darted in and out like a serpent's fangs. There were times when he was disarmingly sweet. Frances took particular care of the dinner when the Duvals came, for he was a connoisseur and a bon vivant in so far as the ulcers permitted.

Her French was fluent and correct, but it didn't sound like French. She never paused for a word or made a mistake, and she pronounced each syllable properly. However, the sentences lacked rhythm; they went at a jog-trot, like a heavy-footed old horse on a muddy road.

Frances had a brother who resembled her, and a mother who was all sparkle and vivacity, and who seemed affectionately amused by her humorless children.

I WAS AWAY from New York for two years. When I returned, Marthe asked, "Have you heard about Frances? My dear, she has married Duval—his wife died not long ago."

It was incredible. Marthe went on, "He married her because she could cook. She will coddle his precious ulcers."

"Well, at least she will never know when he is making fun of her," I replied. "Her literal mind will be a great protection. Thank goodness for that!"

But she did know. A few months later I had a letter from Marthe. "Our poor Frances threw herself under the subway train," she wrote. "What she must have suffered to come to that! What a disillusionment her marriage must have been!"

I realized then that I was the one who was stupid and obtuse, I who had considered a woman insensitive because she was middle-aged and drab. The despair that flung that thick body down on the rails was the more tragic in a life so essentially undramatic. That is why Frances haunts me.

Root of Delinquency

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

WHAT'S the matter with the present generation? Obviously, something is ominously wrong because delinquency is on the increase at a rate that appalls the authorities and sociologists. But what's at the root of the matter? Reams of explanations have been written by scholars, police officers, students of the social scene and scores of just plain aroused citizens. The answers they come up with vary widely—ranging from the failures of home, school and church to filthy comic books. Coddling of young criminals, Communist influences, slums, and the automobile come in for shares of the blame.

"Whatever the cause, the prospects are ominous," Dr. J. declares. "At the meeting of the American Medical Association in San Francisco, authorities predicted a further rise of 40 per cent in the number of juvenile delinquents by 1960. It is 10 times too great already. I wish you would write more on that, Dr. Popenoe."

PLENTY OF OTHER PEOPLE are writing, and eventually they come to the same conclusion, Dr. J., although they may refuse to act on it. They have to recognize that the difficulty mostly starts with husband and wife in the home. For example, "A Juvenile Officer," is a popular discussion of the subject, published just a few weeks ago by Capt. Harold L. Stallings of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department (Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 432 Fourth avenue, New York 16, N.Y., $3).

"The school has a primary responsibility for crime prevention," Capt. Stallings asserts. "The churches can perform mighty tasks in teaching a way of life that will build a morally healthy generation; but if I had to give the one factor that is the greatest influence for good or evil, I would say the family. It is stronger than any other force in society. It makes delinquents and also makes wholesome people."

Capt. Stallings comes down particularly hard on parents in discussing sex crimes. He tells some tragic stories that can be matched a hundred times over by anyone who has to deal with juvenile delinquents. Some parents won't believe that their children wouldn't be guilty of such conduct, he reminds us, but social status has nothing to do with the problem. "Debutantes and slum children are made very much alike, and we have had both under official investigation. It is the morals of the group plus circumstances that play a major role; that and the degree of family training and education on the subject of sex. Every tragedy I encountered might, I felt, have been avoided had the persons concerned been adequately prepared for growing up."

Mary Martin's Daughter Takes a Bow
12-Year-Old Offspring Makes Broadway Debut With Mother in 'Peter Pan'

By Phyllis Battelle

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (INS). EVEN before Mary Martin swooped back to Broadway on the fortunate beholders of her new "Peter Pan," it was a cinch that she believed in fairies—and good little devils.

Now it is similarly a cinch that Miss Martin's 12-year-old daughter, who is making a Broadway debut as a junior ballerina in the show, believes in them, too.

"Oh yes," said Heller Halliday, the wide-eyed sobriety of the devoted fairy lover. "I have grown up with them. My favorite was Tausabells who followed me about for years. But—well you know how it is—any fairy gets a little tiresome after so long because she is with you everywhere and you can never be alone."

So one day when Mary asked her daughter how Tausabells was making out, little Heller took a drastic step.

"Not very well," she told her mother. "In fact, she died."

In so saying, this doe-eyed, long-locked offshoot of Mary Martin lived up to her mischievous given name. When she was born, Mary shocked the Ladies Aid Society in her hometown of Weatherford, Tex., by announcing she would name the baby "Heller"—meaning a vivacious girl, inclined to be perhaps a little devil.

Miss Martin added that she hoped her daughter lived up to the title—"in a mild way, of course."

For a decade Mary Martin and her husband, Richard Halliday, have been one of the most natural, best-liked couples in show business. Now, with Heller's accession to the dancing role of "Liza" in "Peter Pan," they became a triumphant trinity.

ALREADY, Heller shows signs of being the sporting trouper that her mother is. During the California run of "Peter Pan" last summer, she wore a toe on the right foot, unfortunately the foot that she pivots on in most of her dances. Without batting an eye or missing a performance, Heller artfully switched her choreography, making her left the pivot foot until the toe mended a month later.

"Didn't hurt hardly at all," she remembers.

Heller, like her mother, is modest. She attends professional children's school from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. every day, studying all the usual junior high school subjects, from spelling through arithmetic. Ask her which is her best aptitude, she ponders only a moment.

"Well, none of them really. I'm not very good."

Heller is unlike many spoiled children of famous parents. She is torn between wanting to be a tomboy and wanting to grow up. Her favorite sport is still "building huts" out of leaves or mud in the woods around the Halliday home in Norwalk, Conn.

But she "just can't wait to be 13." And when she's "acting out" imaginary dramas with her "eight best girl friends" on weekends, she's always frustrated.

"I never know whether I want to be the kid sister or the mother. It's so much fun to be both."

MARY and Heller both have considerable flying about the proscenium to do in their new musical wonderpiece, Heller "adores" the floating around in the air strung up by a foolproof wire, but she was "very scared for Mommy" because Mary flies higher. At her peak—just before the first-act curtain—Miss Martin soars on wires to a height of 48 feet.

"Every time I hear those

wires creak," shudders Heller, "I have to look up to make sure she's okay."

Mary poot-poots her daughter's fears with one of her wide Texas grins.

"Queen," she says, using one of her several pet names for Heller, "nothing can go wrong with those wires. And it's so wonderful flying. I get such a tremendous feeling of exaltation—it's simply maddening when I have to come down."

Between these two, Mary and Heller, there seems to be a complete understanding as well as family devotion. Mary understands that her daughter has wanted to be a ballet dancer since she was 5 years old and though she'd rather see her go into lighter theater work ("a ballerina's life is so strenuous"), she wants Heller to have her wishes.

"I hope everything comes true for her as it did for me."

Heller, who has traveled the world since infancy, who knows the right people and has the "just-right mother," will probably find it much easier going than Mary did at her age.

MARY was the hard-luck girl of the casting offices until she was discovered by producer Laurence Schwab in 1938. They sometimes called in "Audition Mary" but none of the auditions worked. Then Schwab put her into a show called "Leave It to Me," and it was in that show that she sang "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

Since then, in movies and radio and on the stage she has never missed. A raucous competitor named Ethel Merman put her finger on the reason. Asked how she liked Mary's performance in "South Pacific," Miss Merman remarked: "Oh she's all right—if you like talent."

And maybe Richard Halliday, husband and father of the Never-Dust Twins, puts it even better when he says:

"All blarney aside, these are two of the most wonderfully controlled women I've ever seen. Their credit is discipline. They know so well that the way to be happy all the time is to be healthy, and the way to be healthy is to plan your life so you have enough rest and enough work and enough fun."

Fix It Yourself
By Hubbard Cobb

Drafts Under Doors.

OUR little headache for today is an outside door that allows a cold blast of air to come in through the seam between the bottom of the door and the threshold. Actually, it's not the fault of the door—the trouble is usually that the wood threshold has been worn down so that there is a good size gap between door and threshold.

If the seam isn't too great a strip of weatherstripping along the edge of the door will keep out the air. Close the door and then fasten the strip to the inside face of the door. Make sure that the stripping comes into contact with the threshold along its entire length. The best type of weatherstripping for this particular job, in our opinion, is the type where the strip of rubber is set in a metal strip. The metal strip is fastened to the bottom face of the door and the rubber or rubber comes down to the threshold.

For those who want something a little fancier than this arrangement, there are several types of metal weatherstripping for doors where the stripping is forced down over the threshold as the door is shut to make a positive contact with the threshold. Before this type, and the ordinary weatherstripping, for that matter, is installed, it's best to plane down the threshold so that it's level along the entire length.

One other way to insure a tight joint between the bottom of the door and threshold is to install a special brass threshold which contains a pop-up strip. This strip pops up into a recess cut along the bottom of the door and produces a water and air tight seal.

If you want something temporary that will do the trick but won't look too hot, try tacking a strip of old carpeting along the bottom edge of the door.

Let's Explore Your Mind

1. NEWS FLASH: COLLEGE GIRLS WHO ARE 'MISFITS' HAVE SUPERIOR ABILITY. TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

2. ARE SCIENTISTS MAKING MORE AND MORE DISCOVERIES TO STAVE OFF OLD AGE? YES ☐ NO ☐

3. BENE, MEENE, MINNEY, MOORE AND MORE: WHERE WILL HALF OUR NATION GO? YOUR OPINION

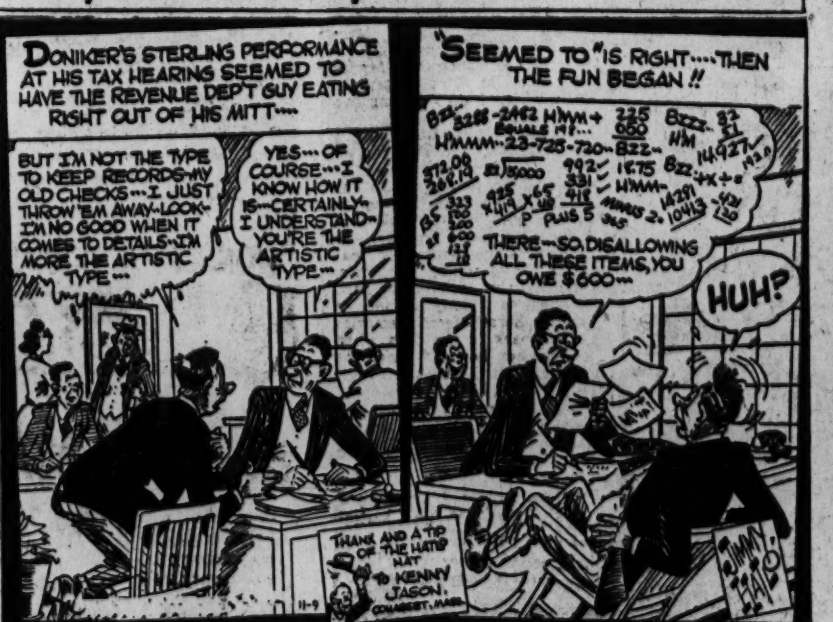

Answer to Question 1. APPARENTLY true. Psychologist John Black gave emotional stability tests to 200 coeds. Twenty-five had serious emotional problems. They withdrew socially, stayed out late, had demerits, etc. Yet, they averaged superior on intelligence tests, even in leadership qualities. Dr. Black thinks such girls could be spotted on entrance and helped by wise counsel.

Answer to Question 2. Obviously, since people now live 20 years longer than in 1900—due to antitoxins, sanitation, vitamins, hormones, etc. "Science Service" reports recent experiment in which 27 "insane" old people were given glutamic acid for 12 weeks. Seventeen showed "increased activity, cheerfulness, and rest in life." Another step in making life happier and healthier.

Answer to Question 3. With the avalanche of babies coming on, many will go on the streets if we don't spend more money for teachers and classrooms. The National Commission for Schools (2 West Forty-fifth street, New York City) says we spend over 14 billions yearly for liquor, tobacco, movies; and only nine billions for making our children into intelligent, useful citizens. You can send to the commission for free advice concerning this pressing problem.

TV Set for Two Rooms

By Elizabeth Hillyer

HERE'S an idea for placing a television set in a strategic spot—so the screen can be seen in two rooms. A long cabinet base, or a bench or pair of benches, stretches beyond the wall of one room into the opening to another room. With a swivel mechanism below it, a table model television set on the end of the bench can turn about-face with the screen toward either one room or the other.

This could be a big problem solver, especially for the home where the living room is the best place for the set. This way, the viewing needn't always be done from the living room. The children just in from playing needn't scramble onto the best living-room chairs, and mother may be able to keep her eye on a favorite program as she goes about her work.

If the adjoining rooms are a living room and dining room, the family can sometimes catch a worthwhile program without hurrying dinner.

Do you buy for your home according to plan? Or do you buy hit-and-miss and make unhappy mistakes? Send for planning advice from an expert, Elizabeth Hillyer's new leaflet, called "Seven Point Plan for Home Furnishings Buying." It's yours for the asking and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent with your request to Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

Mid-Autumn Weddings Planned

WITH the announcement of the names of ushers, plans have been completed for two late November weddings, that of Miss Virginia Tobin who will be married to Bernard James Slater on Thanksgiving day, and Miss Joan Ring who will become the bride of Pfc. Allen A. Meyer Jr., Friday, Nov. 26.

Mr. Slater will have as his ushers Roy C. Johnston, his cousin, and Edward D. Gross, both of Sharon, Pa.; Cecil C. Smith Jr. of Chicago, and three of his fiancée's brothers, John C. Jr., Paul Robyn and Thomas J. Tobin II.

After the noon wedding at the St. Louis Cathedral, Miss Tobin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Tobin, 5 Kingsbury place, will give a breakfast at the Bogey Club. Those coming from out of town to attend the event will be the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John J. Slater, and his aunt, Miss Anne Clifford; Mr. Gross's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gross, and Mrs. Johnston, all of whom live in Sharon; Mr. Slater's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Creevy of Fort Thomas, Ky.; Mrs. Creevy is to be a bridesmaid; Miss Evelyn Maye, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Sol Morris of Chicago. From Ames, Ia., there will be Mr. and Mrs. George Winterwood, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Munn and Miss Hazel Schneider.

MISS RING's fiancé, Mr. Meyer, has asked his father, Allen A. Meyer, to be the best man. He will also be attended by Charles Norcross of Chicago; David Dyer Jr. of Urbana, Ill., and Frank H. Ring and Vincent P. Ring Jr. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., brothers of the bride-elect, as ushers.

The ceremony is scheduled for 11 o'clock in the morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Later a breakfast at the St. Louis Woman's Club will be given by the parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent P. Ring, 86 Aberdeen place, Clayton.

Among the out-of-town guests will be the future bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, who will come from Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. McGarry of Dallas, Tex., and Mr. Meyer's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Penzance, Rochester, N.Y. While in St. Louis they will stay at the Park Plaza Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Weid Jr. (Evelyn Lee Cleeton), who have been living at 6908 Milbrook avenue, University City, since their marriage last June have moved to 6101 Pershing avenue.

To Be Bridesmaid

MRS. JAMES KUHN MELLOW (MARY VIRGINIA ROBERTS), WHO WILL BE A BRIDESMAID AT THE WEDDING OF MISS JEAN McLEOD LEWIS AND PIERRE LOISEL PAPIR JR., SATURDAY, NOV. 27, AT ST. LOUIS KING OF FRANCE CHURCH (OLD CATHEDRAL). THE BRIDE-ELECT IS THE DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. WILSON LEWIS.

Maryville Alumnae Nov. 20 Wedding For Miss Roth, W. L. Weismantel

MARYVILLE COLLEGE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION will sponsor a Cinderella ball to be held Friday night at Duquesne hall on the campus. In keeping with the fairyland theme, pastel pink invitations bore facsimiles of castles and were lettered in cursive.

Providing decoration at the ball will be giant princess slippers glistening with silver and from the balcony will hang pink clocks with black pendulums. The pink-covered tables are to be centered with pink candles in hurricane lamps, while silver pumpkins placed in the windows will also illuminate the ballroom. Until midnight the orchestra platform will be transformed into a storybook coach.

The list of chaperones for the event includes the following alumnae members and their husbands: Mrs. Charles H. Huttig, president; Mrs. Edward F. Mangelsdorf, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Mohrman, Mrs. Frank W. Corley, Dr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Lonsay, Mrs. Elsworth Smith, Miss Theodora Schlueter, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jantzen and Mr. and Mrs. James S. McClellan. Mrs. McClellan, assisted by a large volunteer college group, is in charge of decorations.

Grashoff - Perry Wedding Set for Late December

AMONG Christmas holiday brides will be Miss Mary Cornelia Perry who will be married to Lt. Robert Bernard Grashoff Wednesday morning, Dec. 29. Miss Perry is the younger daughter of Mrs. Frank Upshaw Perry, and the late Mr. Perry. Lt. Grashoff's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Louis Grashoff, 8128 University drive, Clayton.

The ceremony will take place at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church, Clayton, with the Rev. William Glenn, the pastor, officiating. Afterward there will be a breakfast for the immediate families at the home of Mrs. Perry, 7904 Delmar boulevard, University City.

Miss Isabel Hall Perry will attend her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Lt. Grashoff's sister, Miss Rita Grashoff, and Miss Ernesta O'Mara. Harry Grashoff will be his brother's best man. The usher list will be announced later.

Miss Perry was guest of honor at a luncheon and accessories shower Saturday at which Miss Kathleen Vatterott was hostess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Vatterott Jr., 10333 White Bridge lane, St. Louis county. She will be honored at an afternoon party and kitchen shower to be given next Saturday by Mrs. Harold H. Schulz, 6174 McPherson avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Perry Jr., cousins of the bride-elect, will give a buffet supper Dec. 16 at their home, 679 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves.

Wedding in December For Miss Habenicht, Donald W. Winsby

THE marriage of Miss Elise Katherine Habenicht and Donald W. Winsby, whose engagement was announced several months ago, is planned for Dec. 4. The ceremony, attended by members of the families and a few close friends, will take place at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the chapel of the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. Dr. J. Francis Sant will officiate.

Additional guests will be invited by the prospective bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oskar W. Winsby, 60 West Oak, Ladue, to a reception after the wedding. The place for the party has not yet been decided on.

Miss Habenicht has asked Miss Marilyn Weber to serve as her only attendant. Mr. Winsby's son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Winsby, 572 Stratford avenue, University City, will announce his best man and ushers later.

Weid Sr., 1148 Center drive, Richmond Heights, entertained contemporaries of the bride-to-be at a dinner party and kitchen shower Monday, Oct. 18.

Among those who will come from out of town to attend the wedding are: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Ryan of Chicago; Miss Patricia Crowe, Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Roth's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rowling, Charleston.

Women's Clubs Hospital Group To Sponsor Gift Show Friday

By Fay Proffitt

THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY of St. John's Hospital will conduct its third annual Christmas Gift Show Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the auxiliary's gift shop and in the adjacent parlor at the hospital, 307 South Euclid avenue. Mrs. John McHale Dean is president of the sponsoring group.

Mrs. George Stecker and Mrs. Donald L. Twedell, co-chairmen, will be assisted by auxiliary members, wives of the hospital's medical staff, all wearing rose-colored uniforms. The shop and the 10 tables in the parlor will be attractively decorated in a Yuletide motif and all purchases will be wrapped as Christmas gifts. A mobile cart, loaded with holiday merchandise, will be in charge of two volunteers to serve patients in their rooms. The gift shop, which is open every day in the week, with the exception of Sundays, is operated and staffed by auxiliary members and volunteer workers. At the present time it is the principal activity of the organization whose chief philanthropy is the medical education fund of St. John's Hospital.

The committee chairmen who will supervise the 10 special gift tables are: Mrs. Vincent L. Jones, novelties; Mrs. George T. Gaffney, bakery and candy; Mrs. Douglas A. Ries, china; Mrs. Curtis A. Meyer, white elephant gifts; Mrs. Dean Sauer, plants; Mrs. James Dowd, toys and stuffed animals; Mrs. Seymour Brown, jewelry; Mrs. John J. Hammond, Christmas decorations; Mrs. Matthew W. Weis, religious articles, and Mrs. Duff S. Allen, aprons.

St. Stephens College Patrons Club will meet for luncheon Friday at 12:30 p.m. at Missouri Athletic Club. Mrs. Eugene M. Wilson, program chairman, will introduce the guest speaker, Miss Mary Kimbrough, feature writer of the Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Edith L. Crawley, Mrs. William Thumman and Mrs. Albert J. Messmer are in charge of reservations.

Mrs. Joseph A. Quinn, 7326 Princeton avenue, University City, will be hostess to the Confederate Memorial Society tomorrow at 1 p.m. Mrs. F. A. Pell will give a program on "Christmas in Norway."

The St. Louis Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold its monthly dinner meeting tomorrow at the Forest Park Hotel at 6:30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Dr. Samuel Johnson of Harris Teachers College.

Miss Elaine Fassold, newly elected president, will preside at the business meeting at which reports will be given by the convention held in Atlanta, Ga., last month. Miss Martha Austin, past president of the St. Louis Chapter and regional director of Region No. 6, was elected national president at the convention.

City Art Museum To Be Setting for Club Meetings

RUTH KESLO RENFROW ART CLUB will have two speakers at meeting Thursday at City Art Museum beginning at 10 a.m. when the president, Mrs. James S. Runk, will conduct the business session preceding the program.

Mrs. Harry Webster will speak on "Early Christian and Romanesque Art," and Mrs. Jesse Haines will have as her subject, "Gothic Architecture and Sculpture." Miss Jacqueline Ambler, assistant supervisor of education for the museum, will lead discussion groups on both topics.

The Tuesday Literary Club of St. Louis will meet next Tuesday also at the City Art Museum. Luncheon will be served at noon after which there will be a short business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Charles Probst. At 2 p.m. members and guests will visit the "Westward the Way" exhibition. Miss Ambler will give a talk on the exhibition. Mrs. Sanford C. Wise is chairman of the program committee.

ST. LOUIS CHAPTER of the National Women's Committee will give another in a series of membership tests Friday at the home of Mrs. Simon Edison, 4 Fordyce lane, Ladue, at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Isadore Wolff, vice president of the St. Louis Chapter, and Mrs. Maurice Schweitzer, past president and national board member, will be the speakers. Mrs. Benjamin Reichman is chairman of life memberships and Mrs. Alfred Fleishman is chairman of annual memberships. The purpose of the Women's Committee is the complete support and maintenance of the library of the university. Brandeis University is in Waltham, Mass.

The Juno Club will have a dinner meeting tomorrow at 6:40 p.m. at the Winston Churchill tearoom. Miss Annie Laurie, president, will preside at the business session and Mrs. Elizabeth Orr will be chairman for the evening. The subject for the meeting will be "Eugene Field," with Mrs. Orr assisted by Miss Celine Turgeon, Miss Laura Kessler and Miss Betty McGuire giving the program.

Richmond Heights Woman's Club has scheduled its November meeting for Friday at 1:30 p.m. at West Richmond School Auditorium. Mrs. Mary Blanche Quan will give a travel talk on Mexico. Mrs. George Doerbaum, president, will be in charge of the business meeting. After the program Literature Section I of the club will serve tea.

The Perfect Secretary

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR.
LISA went back to the office. She was angry, furious in fact, with Rhoda Barstow. Yet she could not believe that Richard Van Orden could care seriously for a girl so young and so spoiled.

Rhoda was the product of private schools and European trips. She had never worked a day in her life. Nineteen, Lisa thought, forgetting that she was only three years older.

Yet Van had spent the holidays at the Barstow estate. He had not even telephoned the office. This was not like him. Lisa tried to forget her troubles by throwing herself into the work which had piled up on her desk. When Van was away, her responsibility was doubled.

At 5 o'clock Bill Howland appeared. "Time for all inmates to knock off," he said with a smile. "How about dinner? Even glorified office machines have to eat."

"That's not funny, Mr. Howland."

"I thought it was 'excruciating,'" he said, sprawling in a chair and putting his long legs on her desk. "How did your luncheon date go? No arsenic in the lobster, Louise?"

"How did you know we had lobster, Louise?" She replaced the cover on her typewriter. Van was so particular about such things.

"Rhoda Barstow is the type who would order it," he assured her, "because it's expensive. That's the kind of a creature she is."

"She's also cunning and vicious, Bill. She told me she'd do anything to get rid of me. She wants Van to fire me. Think I'm too young to be his secretary?"

"The claws are out then," Bill said cheerfully. "What did you say?"

"Nothing much," Lisa admitted. "Except that Van would never let anyone dictate to him about the agency."

"That's where you're wrong. For the Barstow money Van would burn down the agency."

"She felt a cold shiver of fear. But Barstow Steel doesn't do any advertising..."

"I don't mean that. Rhoda is an only child and Papa's in his sixties. Her mother died last year. Rhoda will inherit everything."

"I was growing dark outside. Lisa snapped the switch, flooding the room with comforting light. You think Van would marry her?" The face she BRUSSELS, Belgium.

PEOPLE in this city spell the name "Bruxelles," but people from English-speaking countries follow the "Brussels" spelling.

Brussels is the largest city in Belgium. Counting the suburbs, it has a population of more than 1,300,000.

As in France, the standard coin is the franc. A Belgian franc, however, is worth eight times as much as a French franc. A Belgian franc has an exchange value of two cents.

When a person goes to a restaurant, he may wonder whether the Belgian franc really is worth two cents. For a modest meal, he is likely to pay from 90 to 120 francs. In a better-grade restaurant, he is fortunate if he can dine for less than 300 francs.

AMONG THE POPULAR
dishes of Belgium are tomatoes stuffed with shrimp, sausage served with grapes, and eels in vinegar. The people also like mussels or moules; at least 35 ways of cooking and serving mussels are known in Belgium.

One reason for my visit to Brussels was a desire to see two friends of my college years. They are Judge and Mrs. Marc Somerhausen. Judge Somerhausen was a member of the parliament when I made a visit to Belgium between the two World Wars. Now he has a lifetime appointment to a high court. Mrs. Somerhausen is the author of a book, "Through the Darkness," which appeared after the last war.

While at the Somerhausen home, I enjoyed a visit with Luc, one of their sons. He is a college student. Another son, a few years older, is in India, opening a career in the Indian diplomatic service. Another son, after studying at Yale University, SCENE DURING OMMEIGANO PROCESSION IN BRUSSELS.

LIFE IN BRUSSELS is marked by more street parades or processions than most cities have. Some of these have their origin in religion, but others go back to national folklore.

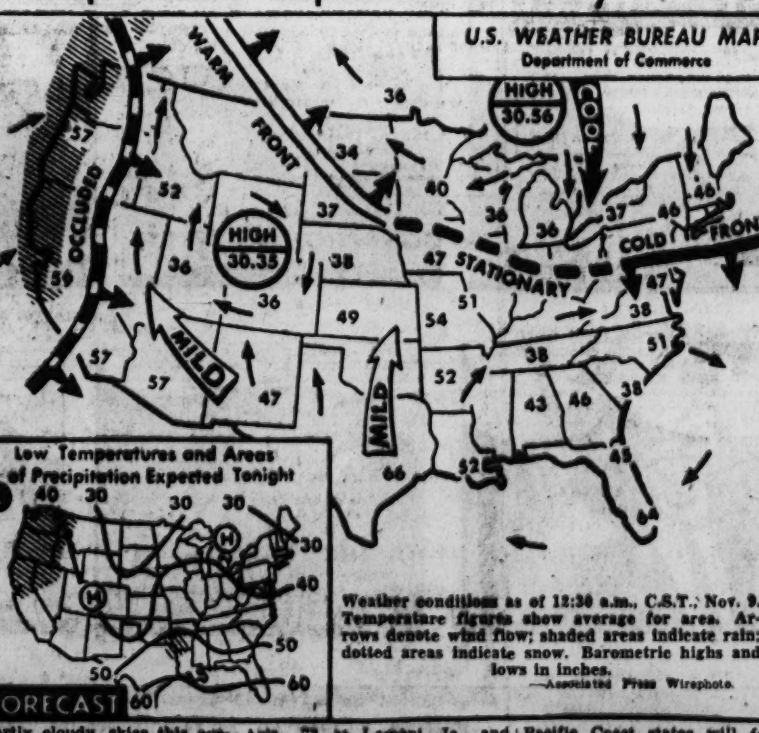

In one procession a 55-pound loaf of bread is a feature; the loaf is decorated with flowers. Later the bread is sliced, and the pieces are given to people who want to guard themselves against rabies!
